CREW OF C. TOWER RESCUED AT SEA

Southern Steamship Company Vessel Goes Down.

HAS VISITED THIS PORT

Except for the One Trip to Wilmington, Charlemagne Tower, Jr., Has Been Out of Commission for Six Years.

Newport News, Va., March 7.—Bringing Capt. H. C. Simmons and seven members of the crew of the American steamer Charlemagne Tower, Jr., which went down off the New Jersey coast yesterday morning, the whaleback steamer Bayport reached here late this afternoon. The wreck survivors were landed at Sewell's Point, where they boarded a trolley for Norfolk, leaving Norfolk tonight for New York.

With four of the men half dead from exposure the shipwrecked crew were picked up near Barnegat light yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock during a blinding snow storm, five miles south of where the Charlemagne Tower, Jr., foundered. Their rescue was effected by the barest chance, a signal light attracting the attention of Capt. Berenger of the Bayport just as the steamer was in the act of passing the small boat. Snow was falling heavily and it was fast growing dark. Capt. Berangor, who was on the bridge, barely could see the light as it flared up. The Bayport put about and discovered the half frozen and snow covered men huddled in a 20-foot boat. A stiff breeze prevailed at the time and the men were water-soaked and numb from cold. In order to make room for the overcrowded cargo, some of the men were forced to lie in the bottom of the boat and these were in worse condition than the others, four of them being restored with difficulty after being taken aboard the Bayport. These men, Quartermaster John Dowling; Steward Cecil Green and Messmate Ralph Holmes, were finally restored and landed with the others this afternoon.

Those Picked Up.

The full list of those picked up by the Bayport follows:

Capt. H. C. Simmons, Chief Engineer H. A. Wilber, Second Mate H. Noaves, Third Mate C. P. Whitney, First Assistant Engineer H. Albin, Second Assistant Engineer W. Dobare, Quartermasters John Dowling and C. Dohoson, Seamen M. Docohoson and W. Walla, Louis Edwards, Bert Albin and Ed Ellifon, oilers; Cecil Green, steward; Ralph Holmes, messman, and Firemen M. Hendrichsen and W. Webb.

Capt. Simmons did not know of the rescue of First Officer Thompson, one fireman and two seamen until his arrival in port as when last seen these men were struggling in the surf, their small boat having been swamped. The larger boat put toward the open sea fearing a similar fate. Unable to make headway in the rough sea which poured water into their little craft almost as fast as it could be bailed out, the men decided to drift and depend on being picked up. They huddled together so benumbed anr water-soaked that they hardly cared toward the last whether death came or not. It was 5 o'clock and snowing hard when they saw the lights of the Bayport and set off a torch. Had this not been seen and a response made Capt. Simmons said he and his men could not have survived many more hours.

In explaining the foundering of the ship the captain said her bottom seams, the vessel being of wood, opened and about 7 A. M. Friday water poured in at such a rate that two hours later the ship was filled to her upper beams. He and his men barely had time to get off in the only two small boats the steamer carried before she plunged to the bottom.

First Mate Thompson and three men took to the small boat and the remainder of the crew crowded into the 20-foot boat picked up by the Bayport. The Charlemagne Tower, Jr., was owned by the Southern Steamship Company and with the exception of one trip to Wilmington, N. C., had been out of commission for six years, it is said.

In Fifty Feet of Water.

Seaside Park, N. J., March 8.—The steamer Charlemagne Tower, Jr., sank yesterday in 50 feet of water three-quarters of a mile from shore between Cedar Creek and Forked River life saving stations, six miles south of here.

H. B. Thompson, of Brooklyn, first mate, and three of the members of the crew were brought ashore.

The revenue cutter Itasca reached the scene after the steamer went down. The commander of the cutter was signalled from shore of the predicament of the 18 men who put off in a boat.

There are two big sand bars near where the steamer sank and the life savers were seriously handicapped in launching their boats. One finally was launched, but was upset and the life savers waded ashore.

Wire communication along the coast has been completely prostrated since last Sunday's storm and communication along the life saving stations today was difficult and only accomplished after delay.

The self-bailing life boat of the Barnegat life saving station has been out of commission for the last three weeks, awaiting repairs and the men therefore could not find the long boat which they had watched drift from sight.

Washington, March 7.—Representative Gudger, of North Carolina, today introduced a bill to appropriate $20,000 to lower Buck Shoals in the French Broad river, in order to drain the lands between Asheville and Brevard, N. C.

BRYAN TAKES HAND IN TERRAZAS CASE

Library of Congress

Letcher Returns to Chihuahua With Instructions

INDICATES WEAKNESS

Generals Villa and Carranza to be Told That Proposed Death of Wealthy Mexican Will Display Rebel Weakness.

El Paso, Texas, March 7.—When Consul Letcher left here today to return to his post at Chihuahua, it was reported that he carried instructions from Secretary Bryan with reference to the case of Luis Terrazas, Jr., held for ransom by Gen. Villa. It is said Gen. Villa and Gen. Carranza both will be informed that the State Department could but construe the threatened execution of Terrazas as indicative of great weakness in the rebel government of Northern Mexico.

This information came from a rebel official today. The official added that the Carranza commission, appointed to investigate the killing of William S. Benton, was prepared to face any facts which might be unearthed derogatory to the actions of Gen. Villa or his subordinates.

"It will not be a whitewash," he added, "and I ask you to observe particularly that the assurances given to Washington on this point have carried conviction with them."

Another Englishman in Trouble.

Washington, March 7.—Another British subject has got into trouble in the State of Chihuahua and the State Department again has been called on to extend its protection. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice called at the State Department today to inform Secretary Bryan that an Englishman named Syndan had been driven away from his ranch and that his property was in danger. Secretary Bryan immediately telegraphed American Consul Letcher at Chihuahua to make an inquiry. If necessary a protest will be made to Carranza or Villa.

Technically the commission charged with investigating the killing of William S. Benton continues in existence and Secretary Bryan said today that its functions simply had been suspended. There now is little idea that the commissioners will proceed to Chihuahua in the expectation of uncovering evidence of value. It probably will be required to carry out its original instructions, however, merely to establish the principle of the right of the United States to act. Nothing further has been heard at the State Department from Gen. Carranza regarding his investigation.

There seems to be no present intention of returning any answer to the communication from Gen. Huerta protesting against the removal of the embargo on arms. The administration, it is thought probable, does not care to risk the construction that such a response would constitute a formal recognition of the Huerta government.

Consular Agent Carothers at Chihuahua was directed by Secretary Bryan today to intercede with constitutionalist leaders in behalf of Luis Terrazas, who, press reports said, had been condemned to death unless a quarter of a million in ransom was paid by his family. The American agent was directed to use every effort to prevent the carrying out of this threat, pointing out that American tolerance might be alienated from the Constitutionalist cause by such an act.

RUSH SIMS REPEAL BILL

Ten Days Will See Panama Canal Tolls Controversy Thrashed Out on Floor of House.

Washington, March 7.—The Sims bill for repeal of the coastwise shipping exemption clause of the Panama Canal act probably will be laid before the House in about ten days. Democratic Leader Underwood and Chairman Adamson, of the House committee on inter-State commerce, reached an agreement late today to press the measure after the passage of the Rivers and Harbors appropriation bill which will follow the disposition of the agricultural appropriation bill next week.

While no canvass of the House has been made, it was believed tonight that about 50 Democrats would vote against the administration plan. House Republicans also are divided. It is understood that Representative Mann, of Illinois, minority leader, will oppose the bill as will Majority Leader Underwood, on the ground that the Democratic platform binds him to oppose the President in this matter.

While a rule to expedite consideration will be available, it may not be necessary, as both sides are eager for discussion. Representative Sims, of Tennessee, author of the bill, predicted today that it would become a law without much delay.

UNEMPLOYED FILL SACRAMENTO, CAL.,

"General" Kelly's Army En Route to Washington

FIFTEEN HUNDRED MEN

Company of State Militia Held in Readiness to Guard State Arsenal and to Answer Riot Calls—Offered Work.

Sacramento, Cal., March 7.—Sacramento wrestled all day with the unemployed problem, precipitated by the arrival here of "General" Kelley's "army of unemployed" on its way from San Francisco to Washington. Tonight no solution had been reached, but a company of the State militia had been ordered to guard the State arsenal and to be in readiness to answer a riot call. Companies at Oroville, Stockton, Chico and Woodland were notified to hold themselves in readiness for similar service.

More than 300 recruits joined the army, which is now divided into two rival factions of almost equal strength one obeying the orders of "General" Kelley and the other composed of seceders. About 1,500 men are in the two camps.

Leaders of the men called at the executive offices totday and demanded of Governor Johnson that they be supplied with food and transportation to the State line. The governor offered them work instead, and they refused, declaring they would accept no employment until they had completed the march to Washington.

No decision could be reached by city and county officials as to what disposition should be made of the army. One of the questions debated was whether or not to ship it back to San Francisco. There were no disturbances at the rival camps, although emissaries of the seceders added to the bitter feeling by inducing a number of "General" Kelley's followers to desert.

PEACE TREATY DISCUSSED

Secretary of State Bryan and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice Talk Over Details—Others Follow.

Washington, March 7.—Secretary Bryan and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador, today discussed details of a peace treaty similar to those which Mr. Bryan already has signed with 13 countries and to which Great Britain has assented in principle.

The Secretary announced he expected soon to sign similar treaties with Argentina, Chile and Uruguay, while Brazil also had begun discussion of details. The treaties provide for the submission to an international commission of all questions which cannot be settled by ordinary diplomatic methods. Instructions to Dr. Romulo S. Naon, Argentine minister to sign the treaty are understood to be on the way, while Chile may be ready to sign early next week. Uruguay, it is said, will not be far behind the two other South American countries.

Thirty-three countries up to date have accepted the treaties in principle. None of those signed have yet been approved by the Senate.

Great Britain has gone further in endorsing the Bryan "peace plan" than any of the other great nations of Europe, although the terms of a possible convention have not been finally agreed upon. The Netherlands pact, which is used as a basis for the treaty with Great Britain, does not contain a provision that hostilities shall not be entered into during the period of investigation.

AMERICAN ARTIST FOUND GUILTY OF KIDNAPING.

Miss Charlotte Herman and F. P. Earle Are Fined.

Romorantin, France, March 7.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the American artist, and Miss Charlotte Herman, charged with having kidnaped Earle's son, Harold, from a school near Paris, were found guilty after a two days trial. Earle was sentenced to two months in prison and fined $5, and Miss Herman to a month in prison and fined $3.25. Both defendants were released this evening, in view of the fact that they already had spent in prison the time to which they were sentenced today.

The abduction of young Earle, who is a son of the artist, by his first wife, Mme. Fischbacher, took place last November. The lad was taken to Norway. Earle and Miss Herman were arrested in January and were brought back to France early in February for trial.

The mitigation of the sentence of imprisonment under the French statute lay in the discretion of the judge. Earle's lawyer, summing up, declared his client was in his right mind, despite assertions to the contrary. He denied statements attacking Earle's character and alleged an immoral man. He also pointed out differences in the methods of educating French and American boys to justify the attitude and language of Earle before his son. He asked for acquittal of Earle or the imposition of a nominal fine and also pleaded for the release of Miss Herman declaring she was in ill health. Sonsul for Mme. Fischbacher vigorously opposed this.

Washington, March 7.—Secretary Bryan left tonight for Springfield, Mass., to address the Y. M. C. A. there tomorrow.

ANTI-TRUST BILLS ARE BEING RUSHED

Efforts to Conclude Hearings By St. Patricks Day

COMBINE ALL MEASURES

Trade Commission Bill Is Practically Completed but Will be Subject to Conference Between Wilson and McReynolds.

Washington, March 7.—An effort to conclude hearings on the administration anti-trust bills by March 17th, will be made by the House Judiciary Committee, according to Chairman Clayton. Several Democratic members of the committee conferred with the chairman today as to the general anti-trust situation, and as to the proposal that tentative bills be combined into a single measure for presentation to the House. Some members have expressed dissatisfaction with the progress of the legislation and an effort will be made to hurry the programme along.

The trade commission bill virtually has been completed by the sub-committee but will be a subject of conference with President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds and committee members before it is introduced.

The bill provides for a trade commission of three, each at $10,000 annual salary, with all the powers of the present bureau of corporations. Unlike the original Clayton bill it makes no specific reference to the commission of corporations as a member of the trade committee.

Applies to all Corporations.

The bill applies to all corporations, joint stock companies and corporate combinations having a capital of $5,000,000 or more belonging to such classes of such concerns as the commission may determine. It defines capitalization as property of corporation without referring to stocks and bonds.

The commission under the bill would make reports at the instance of either house of Congress, the President or the Department of Justice. The reports to Congress will be made public, but the question of publicity of other reports, inasmuch as they might affect pending legislation perplexed the committee. As it stands, this is left to the discretion of the commission.

The bill gives the commission full power to make for any corporation "such adjustment of business as will avoid violation of the law." This point still is a subject of advice from the attorney general. It also provides that while the commission may be appointed immediately, the time in which the mandatory provisions of the law shall become operative shall not be until sixty or ninety days after its enactment.

FAYETTEVILLE TEAM DEFEATS ORIOLES.

First Game of Season Went to Locals Yesterday.

Fayetteville, N. C., March 7.—The first practice game of the season was played this afternoon by the Baltimore Internationals and a team picked by Captain Egan, styled the "Buzzards," winning 15 to 9, against the "Yannigans," headed by Scout Steinmann. The Orioles showed up well in hitting, but sore arms and fingers brought complaints from the players. Egan and Ruth led in hitting. The wind was rather high and against the hitters, causing hard hit balls to fall into waiting hands. McKinley pitched for the "Yannigans" and Massena for the "Buzzards."

INTRODUCE EVIDENCE.

In Trial of Army Officer Being Held Behind Closed Doors.

New London, Conn., March 7.—The defense, in the trial of Major Benjamin M. oehler, on charges said to involve immorality, continued to introduce evidence as to the good character of the accused officer at today's session of the court martial at Fort Terry. Witnesses included Captain Patten, Lieut. Lee and Corporal Toler. It is expected that the trial will extend through another week at least. The trial is behind closed doors.

CLARK DENOUNCES CHARLES ZUEBLIN

Speaker of House Cheered By All Factions

HIS 64TH. BIRTHDAY

College Professor Assailed Clark's Counting of Votes—Denounced by Speaker in No Uncertain Terms—Candelabra.

Washington, March 7.—Speaker Clark signalized his 64th birthday anniversary in the House today by denouncing an address by Charles Zueblin, former professor of sociology in the University of Chicago, assailing the speaker's counting of votes on the report of the committee that investigated the Mulhall lobby charges. Democrats, Republicans and Progressives cheered and lauded the speaker when he had finished.

Mr. Clark had read to the House a published article quoting Zueblin's attack on his methods and the alleged arbitrary dictation of the speaker and also Democratic Leader Underwood.

Clark branded Zueblin's statements as "untrue, brazen and outrageous," and a reflection on the integrity of the House. He quoted the figures of the Mulhall vote, pointing out that any member wishing to vote had four opportunities to do so, and added:

"I have been lied about so much I have sort of got used to it."

Representative Mann, Republican leader; Representative McDonald, of Michigan, Progressive; Representative Butler, of Pennsylvania, Republican, and others joined in corroborating the speaker and paying tribute to his fairness and honor.

Mr. Mann's allusion to the speaker's 64th birthday produced applause. He declared no one could question Speaker Clark's honor, integrity or fairness as speaker.

Speaker Clark was given a surprise party later when 20 or more of his colleagues presented him with a silver candelabra.

TO LEAVE NORTH CAROLINA

Rev. M. McG. Shields, Leader in the Presbyterian Synod, Goes to Georgia Synod April 1.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Greensboro, N. C., March 7.—Rev. M. McG. Shields, at present moderator of the Synod of North Carolina and superintendent of synodical home missions of the Presbyterian church, has accepted a call to the synod of Georgia and will leave about the first of April for the "Cracker State." His going will be a matter of keen regret to leaders of the Presbyterian church.

He is a native of the State and has labored in the synod for many years. Mr. Shields received a call to the Georgia synod a year ago but at that time declined. A month or so ago the call was renewed and he decided to accept, and will take up the same work there that he has had in this State, that of superintendent of home missions.

He has been at the head of home mission work in North Carolina for six years and has caused the work to grow and raised and paid a large indebtedness. He has lived in Greensboro for several years. His successor is being discussed and will be chosen at an early date.

VANDERBILT TO BE BURIED IN NEW YORK

Remains Will Be Laid to Rest on Family Estate

CLOT CAUSED DEATH

Action of Heart Was Stopped by Clotted Blood—Vestry of Biltmore Church Want Body Buried Beneath Chancel.

Washington, March 7.—The funeral of George W. Vanderbilt, who died here yesterday, will be held here on Monday at noon from Bethlehem chapel of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, Episcopal. Interment will be made Tuesday in the family vault on the old Vanderbilt estate at Newdorp, Staten Island.

Much interest centered about the effect of Mr. Vanderbilt's death upon his immense estate at Biltmore, N. C. No information was forthcoming at the Vanderbilt home here as to plans for the future of the property and it was not known whether the widow would continue to make her home there.

Mr. Vanderbilt died at his residence here yesterday less than an hour after he had been reading newspapers in bed and conversing with his wife. He appeared to be in good condition, considering loss of strength from a recent operation. During the conversation he asked Mrs. Vanderbilt to get him a glass of water and another newspaper. When she returned from her errand she found him unconscious. He died within the hour.

The immediate cause of death was a blood clot that clogged arteries of the heart.

About ten days ago Mr. Vanderbilt underwent an operation, the nature of which was not revealed. Reports from his physicians had been cheering and it was said on Wednesday that he was strong enough to sit up in bed.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was Miss Edith Dresser, of New York, was almost prostrated by her husband's sudden death. She had been continuously in attendance at his bedside since the operation.

Funeral Services at Biltmore.

Asheville, N. C., March 7.—The vestry of All Souls church, Biltmore, of which George W. Vanderbilt was a member, has made a request of the family of the deceased, it was learned today, that the remains be interred under the chancel of the church here. If this request is not granted and the body is taken to the family burying ground on Staten Island, funeral services will be conducted here at the same hour and on the same day that they are conducted in New York. Mr. Vanderbilt took an active part in the work of the church which he built and maintained, paying all salaries. Contributions taken at the services went in whole to charities and missions.

Close associates here of Mr. Vanderbilt state, without having definite knowledge of the provisions of the will of the deceased that Mr. Vanderbilt has made provision for the maintenance of the church and the Clarence Barker Memorial Hospital, which he built and endowed several years ago. It also is stated on high authority that the estate proper will be perpetuated, it being understood that Mr. Vanderbilt has made provision for its maintenance. It is expected that the forest aggregating about 100,000 acres, eventually will be included in the Southern Appalachian National Park Reserve. The estate on which is situated one of the finest country mansions in the United States, costing over $5,000,000, is said to be a success now as a business venture, Mr. Vanderbilt having made it such through his own business ability and personal oversight.

GUNS LOADED FOR MR. KEITH

Simmons and Godwin to Present a Few Documents, It is Said, to McAdoo Tuesday.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Senator Simmons and Representative Godwin made an engagement today to meet Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo Tuesday afternoon to further urge the removal of B. F. Keith as collector of customs at Wilmington.

While neither Senator Simmons nor Representative Godwin would discuss the matter, it is understood that they have secured information which will convince Secretary McAdoo that Keith should be removed.

Just what they have to fire at the Republican collector cannot be stated at this time, but it is certain they have loaded their guns with ammunition and will fire a broadside at Mr. Keith.

Up to the time that Keith refused to resign, no effort had been made to have him removed. But as soon as Senator Simmons and Representative Godwin learned the hostile attitude of the collector, they began to look around. It is said they will present a few documents to the Secretary Tuesday in substantiation of their claim that he should be removed.

LEO. M. FRANK WILL HANG ON BIRTHDAY

Death Sentence Again Read to Superintendent

PROTESTS INNOCENCE

April 17th Set for Leo M. Frank's Death—Murdered 14-Year-Old Phagan Girl in Atlanta, April 26th, 1913.

Atlanta, Ga., March 7.—Leo M. Frank was re-sentenced to death here today for the murder of Mary Phagan, a factory girl. His execution was set for April 17th.

The date set for the execution is the prisoner's 30th birthday. This fact was not known until sentence was pronounced, when Frank, turning to a friend, remarked that the 17th would be his birthday anniversary. Frank was born in Paris, Texas, on April 17th, 1884.

Judge B. H. Hill, of the Superior court, in pronouncing sentence, merely carried out the order of the Supreme Court of Georgia, which on February 17th approved the conviction. Frank previously had been sentenced to be executed October 10th, 1913, but sentence was suspended pending decision of a motion for a new trial, an appeal to the Supreme Court, and a motion for re-hearing on the appeal. The latest of these efforts to save the life of the factory superintendent was defeated by decision of the Supreme Court on February 25th.

Immediately after the formal decree of execution was read by Judge Hill, the condemned man made a brief statement to the court, protesting his innocence. He spoke with composure, varying his tone of voice only to emphasize various points touched upon in his statement.

Frank Makes Statement.

In his statement Frank charged that popular clamor for "a blood sacrifice" had been responsible for his conviction.

"The law says that when one has lost his life through violence of another," he said, "the perpetrator of the deed must answer with his own. But the law does not say that where one has been killed a blood sacrifice must be made of the next convenient individual. Previous to and during my trial gossip on the streets carried vile, damning stories concerning me and my wife. From a public in this state of mind, the jury that tried me was chosen. The virus of these vile insinuations entered the minds of the 12 men and stole away their judicial frame of mind. The issue involved was law, but the poison of the unspeakable thinks took its place.

"But if the State wills that my life be taken as the blood atonement for the little child who was ruthlessly killed by another, then it remains only for me to die with whatever fortitude my manhood may allow."

Attorneys for Frank already have announced their intention of filing an extraordinary motion for a new trial, on ground of newly discovered evidence. This action, it is expected, will be delayed several weeks and pending disposal of the mation by the Superior court, the date of execution may be deferred stih further.

While no definite announcement has been made of the nature of the allegaeions to be incorporated in the extraordinary motion, it is expected to touch upon several affidavits recently made public by counsel for Frank.

Judge Hill, who pronounced sentence today, recently succeeded Judge L. S. Roan, who presided at Frank's trial, and sentenced him to death on August 26th and on October 31st denied a motion for new trial. The murder was committed April 26th, 1913.

Reiterates Innocence.

Frank tonight addressed a card to the public in which he reiterated his innocence and declared that he believed he was entitled to a new trial.

"The shadowa of physical death does not dismay me," he said. "If such be my end, I shall go to it without fear and without qualm. I am a man, born to face and endure that which the chance of fate may bring.

"In the sight of God and in His name by the honor which I hope will be restore to me, by everything which a man may hold sacred, I swear that I am innocent of crime."

CHARGED WITH BIGAMY.

Norfolk & Western Employe Arrested at Roanoke, Va.

Roanoke, Va., March 7.—Edgar L. McKinsey, an employe of the Norfolk & Western Railway here, was arrested today on a warrant charging him with bigamy. Advices from Lawrence county, Ky., say the man arrested is in reality Albin L. McDugal, whom Kentucky officials claim escaped from jail at Louisa, Ky., while awaiting grand jury action, several years ago on a bigamy charge, later he was indicted by the grand jury.

According to information from Louisa, Ky., McDugal married May Austin in Lawrence county, Ky., in August, 1911, when he had a wife who was Miss Nancy Bennett, living in Lawrence county, near Ironton, O., whom he is charged with having married in April, 1910.

It is reported that under the name of McKinsey, the man arrested here, married Mrs. Fannie Grove, a widow of Roanoke, in Petersburg, Va., June 4th, 1913.

McKinsey was released on bail signed by J. W. Overstreet, father of the Petersburg wife, for appearance in police court next week.

Chicago, March 7.—A campaign will be launched tomorrow at a mass meeting of labor men to raise a fund of $100,000 for the defense of Carl E. Person, in jail at Clinton, Ill., charged with killing a strike-breaker employed in the Illinois Central Railroad shops.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

PHILLIES 5; A. C. L. 1.

Local Boys Played Good Game for Early Season—Ireland Injured in Sixth Inning.

Wilmington's star athletic team played good early-season baseball against the Phillies yesterday afternoon, but succumbed to the inevitable, the final score after eight and a half innings had been played being five to one in the Phillies' favor. The Coast Line team acquitted themselves very creditably indeed in opposition to the big leaguers, and remarks were heard by players and correspondents here with the team that the team really surprised them, owing to the fact that they have had comparatively no practice this season.

"Pomp" Green was Manager Bundy's first choice on the mound, and held his own for three innings, allowing but one hit to the inning, although rather free with first station transportation. He was succeeded by Boswell, who held 'em down for the same number of frames, allowing five hits in his time. Grand finished the game, allowing but a couple of safeties.

Alexander the Great was Dooin's lead-off at mound duty, twirling three innings when he was replaced by Marshall, who in turn turned it over to Haislip for the last three innings. Dooin's bunch, according to the Boss himself, showed up in fine form, considering the small opportunity they have had for training, and further to the fact that a large number of recruits played in the game, a total of 14 Phillies being injected into the game.

The first two innings were scoreless, the Phils starting the dirty work in their half of the third, putting three men across the rubber. Paskert was out to left field, after which Becker got on by being hit by a pitched ball by Green. He went down to second when no one was at home to receive a perfect throw. Byrne was granted transportation to first, as was also Magee, congesting the cushions. Luderus hit safely and went down to second when Hammond fumbled the ball, scoring Becker and Byrne. Ireland flied to deep center, Magee scoring on the throw in. Murphy flied out and Killifer was out pitcher to first.

In the Phillies' fourth, other scoring was threatened but a lightning triple play with the bases full, retired the side, third baseman catching the fly, tagging Alexander and threw to second catching Paskert.

In the fifth, the Daisies annexed two more tallies, Magee starting with a single to center. Luderus hit one through second base, and safely annexed second station on the throw in, Magee scoring. Ireland was safe when Green dropped the ball, and went down to second. Murphy was hit, filling the bases again, and Killifer scored Luderus with a single to short. Outfielder Ireland, in attempting to slide into second, sustained a serious sprained ankle, and had to be carried from the field, Reed taking his place. Paskert went out to short and Boswell struck Becker out.

In the first half of the seventh, the locals made their only tally of the game, Bundy starting with a single. Thompson followed with another safety. Lowe hit to second, but a double play retired two men leaving Bundy on third. Charlie Terry placed a neat single in left field scoring Bundy, and Hines flied out.

Cars to Greenfield

And Sunset Park every ten minutes this afternoon.—Advertisement.

Notes From the Phillie Camp

GAMES MONDAY, TUESDAY, FRIDAY.

Manager Dooin has received notification from Colonel Bennett, of Fort Caswell, that the Fort boys will be unable to play a series of games the first of the week as had been planned, owing to the fact that their team has not yet been organized for the coming season.

To take the place of these games, Business Manager Shettsline has arranged for three games between the Regulars and Yannigans, to be played Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The two line-ups, composed of Phil players, will furnish snappy, interesting contests, as the boys are all trying their best to make an impression upon Boss Dooin, and will exert themselves even more than in the game yesterday.

For these games, tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday, the admission will be only 25 cents, which will admit one to any part of the grounds and grandstand. The 10-minute car schedule will be in operation every afternoon, and large crowds should witness each of the contests. The games will be called promptly at 3 o'clock.

For the last three days of the week, the Jersey City Skeeters will come for three games with Dooin's Daisies, when Wilmington will have an opportunity of witnessing three real big league baseball games.

DOOLAN HAS SIGNED WITH THE FEDERALS.

No Official News Has Been Received By Dooin.

News reached the city yesterday morning that Shortstop Mike Doolan had signed a contract with the Federal League early yesterday morning or late the night before, although it was not learned what team he has signed with nor any particulars as to the offer made to persuade him to desert Manager Dooin.

"I am not much surprised at hearing that Doolan has deserted the Phillies," said Manager Dooin last night, "but I am surprised that no official notice has yet been sent me. I thought that Doolan would communicate with me before signing."

"However," Dooin continued, "the team shall not be seriously hurt by Doolan's desertion, as I have some good material from which to warp a first-class man for the shortstop job in Murphy, Ireland, Reed and Curry, and shall be able to easily fill his place."

Mr. Dooin stated that Hans Lobert would certainly stick to the Phils, and would probably arrive in Wilmington to join the training squad within the next few days.

Outfielder Ireland, who was injured in yesterday's game, was reported to be getting along nicely last night. He suffered a pretty serious sprained ankle, but it is not thought that this will keep him out of the game for many days.

WEALTHY PITCHER JOINS PHILLIES.

Cliff Case, of Trenton, to Try Twirling End.

Cliff Case, a wealthy young business man of Trenton, N. J., has joined the Philly squad to do some twirling with the training crew here. Case pitched on the same amateur team as Carroll Brown, of the Athletics, and it is thought that he will prove as good as Mack's tall twirler after some seasoning. There is one proviso in Case's contract with Dooin. He is not to be sent to the minors, in case he don't make good with the Phils, but is to get a release. Case has money, and won't stand for any minor league post.

OLD ATHLETIC STAR NOW WILMINGTON RESIDENT, MINGLES WITH PHILS.

Bill Shettsline was sitting in the lobby of the Orton Hotel the other day when he was approached by a gray-haired man who said. "It's been 18 years since I last shook hands with you." Sheetsline couldn't place the old gent until he added, "I'm what's left of 'Jumping Jack' Jones," at which Sheetsline said "For the love o' Mike," or something equally fervent.

Old-time fans will remember "Jumping Jack" Jones as the sensational twirler who drifted into Philadelphia from Yale and won the pennant for the Athletics in 1883, winning nine consecutive games, after which a big parade was held in honor of the champions at which the principle feature was an immense number of jumping jacks, in honor of the pitcher who was the means of winning the championship. Mr. Jones is a well known Wilmingtonian, being president of the Wilmington Trades Council.

..Theatrical..

Ending up one of the biggest and most delightful bills of its career last night, the Victoria Theatre, the home of Keith Vaudeville, is prepared to keep up the good, the really big work by presenting this week two of the best shows now doing time on the great Keith circuit. The bill that opens tomorrow afternoon, to be followed by two performances tomorrow night and then continue for Tuesday and Wednesday, is the pick of the picks in vaudeville. Novelty will play a big part in the show, and of such nature as will please all. For illustration, McCormick and Wallace, the foremost ventriloquial artists on the stage, will present a unique act, one that will be elaborate as well as delightful otherwise. Another very unique act will be presented by Maxwell Holden, the noted shadowgraphist. He is one of the big attractions of the vaudeville stage and an engagement from him is always considered important. Long Green and Chapron, a comedy duo known throughout the country, will also be stars of the new show and will introduce both clever singing and dancing in their act. Hailen and Hunter, another noted sketch team, will also be headliners, presenting an immensely funny act. There will be a dandy new offering by the Victoriascope and Professor Brown's superb orchestra will be heard in the following classy numbers: "Laughing Love," overture, by Christie; "Medley No. 6 Successes," selections, by Shapiro; "The Idol," selection, by Anderson; "The Junk Man," rag, by Roberts; "Porto Rico Rag," intermezzo, by Danbey; "Bridal Roses," waltz, by Dabney, and "Parade of the Tin Soldiers," march, by Jessel.

Great Week at the Grand.

Another great week is just ahead of Grandites, because the Grand Theatre, the people's favorite amusement spot, has planned an extra big offering for every day. Each day this week will be marked by a big special release, and other star films, with special music on the side by the Wurlitzer orchestra, and then on Wednesday (mark this well), Mr. Daniel Frohman will present no less a distinguished actor than the renowned Henry E. Dixey, who will be seen in a magnificent moving picture presentation of "Chelsea 7750."

But tomorrow's bill. It is going to be an all-star affair. A two-part Edison will lead the way, being "Deacon Billington's Downfall." It is a comedy drama of the country, that brings in love, horse racing, many quaint rural incidents and then the "Deacon," who, while a temperance speaker, loves his "likker."

Selig has a great dramatic offering, one of stirring action, beautiful plot and great scenery, in "A Message From Across the Sea." It's the story of two old Norwegian cronies, who have a break over marriage of their children, who, finally, run away to America to wed. Then comes the message from far away, bringing a reunion and happiness.

"Only One Shirt" is a rouser Kalem comedy. It will make folks scream with laughter, as the two chums try to divide the time of the lone shirt so each will make a nice appearance.

Wise theatregoers won't fail to be in on tomorrow's great Grand show.

Bijou's Biggest Week

Tomorrow will inaugurate the biggest week, positively, in the history of the popular Bijou, the program for the week including five three-reel productions, four double-reel features, and an even half dozen full reel new and up-to-the-minute pictures, of the best that could be picked from forty-five reels.

Monday will witness the production of a stupendous three-reel feature "Rory O' The Bogs," with that peerless photoplay actor Warren Kerrigan in the leading role, supported by an eminent company. "Rory O' The Bogs" is an Irish romance of the Eighteenth Century, and cannot help but appeal to everyone. It deals with treachery, romance and love, and is one of the prettiest typical Irish stories ever told.

Another headliner presenting another big star is "Some Nerve" a big comedy offering with Ford Sterling in one of his highly emotional comedy roles. He is supported by a star actress, who is considered one of the prettiest girls on the stage. It brings a laugh to every minute, and is a full reel in length.

Don't worry about the weather—there's no such thing at the Bijou. Solid comfort, regardless of outside conditions, is one of the Bijou's strongest features. It leaves you free to enjoy the pictures to the fullest. And the price—well you know what it is—never more. "Our Mutual Girl" is coming Friday.

To the Democrats of New Hanover County:

Joseph Watters Ruark, who is a candidate for nomination for Senator from the 10th Senatorial district, is a well known and capable citizen of Brunswick. In my opinion he would make a most acceptable Senator for this district. He is a son of Mr. J. B. Ruark, a well known merchant of Southport, and who has been for many years chairman of the Brunswick County Board of Education. Mr. J. W. Ruark is in every way identified with the interests of this district and would make a safe and conservative Senator. I hope the Democrats of New Hanover will rally to his support.

R. S. NEWTON.
Clerk of Brunswick Superior Court.
Southport, N. C.

To the Democracy of New Hanover County:

I desire to endorse the candidacy of Mr. Joseph Watters Ruark for Senator from the 10th Senatorial District, composed of the counties of New Hanover and Brunswick. I have known Mr. Ruark from his boyhood; I know him to be competent, and I feel that the interests of both counties can safely be intrusted to him.

FOR STATE SENATOR:

JOS. W. RUARK

of BRUNSWICK COUNTY.

The issue is not whether the agreement between Brunswick and New Hanover shall be changed, but Shall it be in good faith observed until changed.

LUMBERTON NEWS OF A WEEK

Six Days of Court in Two Weeks Term—Some Snow Yet Remains.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., March 7.—The two weeks term of Superior court which convened Monday of last week, adjourned Thursday of this week, having been in session only six days in the two weeks, three days of last week and three of this. So far as court is concerned, the court house will be dark now until March 30th.

Official notice was received here yesterday from Washington that the Postoffice Department had decided on the Townsend lot, Seventh and Elm streets, for a postoffice building.

At a meeting of the town commissioners held Thursday afternoon, Mr. James Boyle, of Maxton, was elected night policeman to succeed Mr. Dennis Berry, who was relieved a few days ago. Mr. Boyle was for some time United States marshal and has had also considerable police experience. There were eight or ten applications for the job.

The writer witnessed rather an unusual occurrence one night this week. Two brothers, both grown men, one being several years older than the other, met for the first time. They were Greeks, and the elder left the old country, coming to America, before the younger was born. The meeting was a joyful one.

The Wake Forest Glee Club gave a concert in the opera house last night, which was the occasion for a packed house and well pleased audience. An invitation had been sent out to all in the county who had attended Wake Forest College to be present, and many from different parts of the county were here.

Some Snow Yet Remains.

The snow which fell here Wednesday night of last week has not all yet disappeared, some of it still remaining in shady places. If big snows have anything to do with it, as many people claim, this ought to be a good crop year in Robeson.

For the past several days Lumber river has been on a swell, the water in many places having gone over the banks into the woods. Fishermen say that when the season opens, with the approach of warm weather, fishing should be good. No fish of any kind are to be had here now except very small mullets.

When the union passenger station is established here April 1st, it is to be hoped that a telephone will be installed for the benefit of the traveling public. As it is now, the Virginia & Carolina Southern has a phone, but the Seaboard Air Line has one only at the freight station, and, while one is needed many times during the day at the passenger station, there is none there. One night two or three weeks ago the operator who goes on duty at midnight was taken very ill, but he could not call for assistance. A policeman happened to pass that way and find the young man in his helpless condition and hastened to a phone some distance away to call a physician and another operator to relieve the sick man.

Laborers are now engaged in laying sewer pipe on Fourth street preparatory to paving the street from Chestnut to Water street. Similar work will be done on other streets to be paved as rapidly as possible. If Lumberton has ever had a more progressive administration than the present the writer cannot recall it.

Farm Life School Located.

At its regular meeting held this week, the county board of education decided to let the farm life school to Philadelphus high school, in Burnt Swamp township, four miles from Red Springs. While there were no other bids for the school, it is generally conceded that it could not have gone to a better place.

Rev. E. M. Hoyle, a former pastor of the Lumberton Methodist church, spent several days here this week and was cordially greeted by a large number of friends. Mr. Hoyle and family are now residing in Asheville, where he has a charge, he having returned to the western part of the State on account of the bad health of his wife. Mrs. Hoyle has regained her former good health, being now as well as ever.

Mr. Wayne Caldwell, assistant cashier of the Farmers & Merchants' Bank, will, in a short time, sever his connection with that institution and go to Baltimore, where he will enter a business college. It is not learned who will be his successor at the bank.

A well attended meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse was held last night at which the charter was accepted, necessary committees appointed and matters put in shape to push the erection of a building at once.

There is much complaint of bad roads in this section at present, but nothing else could be expected when so much rain and snow have fallen during the past two weeks. However, the farmers are moving very little guano yet, which is greatly in favor of the roads.

Quits Law Practice.

Mr. J. M. Moss, for several months associated with Mr. E. J. Britt in the practice of law in Lumberton and Rowland, Mr. Moss being located in the latter town, has closed his office and is again with the News and Observer as traveling representative. He was with that paper before he began the practice of law.

On account of the very unfavorable weather last Monday, the recital, reading, etc., which was to have been given at the opera house that night, was postponed until some time in the near future when weather conditions shall have improved.

"Aunt" Kittie McNeill, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed colored women of this section, died this week. From the Surrender up to a few years ago, when the colored people had to give up their homes in the northern part of town, "Aunt" Kittie lived in "New Town," but when she had to move across the river, she never came over in town any more. No better colored person has lived in Lumberton. W. S. W.

ARRAY OF NOTABLE SPEAKERS.

For Second Annual North Carolina Baptist Men's Convention.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wake Forest, N. C., March 7.—Dr. Chas. E. Brewer, chairman of the programme committee of the North Carolina Baptist Men's Convention, has prepared an interesting programme.

This is the second meeting of this kind to be held in North Carolina. Never before have such an array of notable speakers been secured to assemble in a Baptist gathering of this kind; and those who make the sacrifice to be in Durham at this convention will be well repaid.

Shall the Sheriff of the County continue to be a tax collector? I am unequivocally in favor of divorcing tax collecting from the Sheriff's office, to leave him free to attend to the duties for which he was primarily intended. FRANK HERBST.

MAXTON MAN FOR SOLICITOR

S. B. McLean Candidate to Succeed N. A. Sinclair—News Notes from Western Robeson.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Maxton, N. C., March 7.—For some time it has been rumored that Maxton was to furnish a candidate for the solicitorship of the Ninth Judicial district, composed of Bladen, Cumberland, Hoke and Robeson counties, and that Mr. S. B. McLean would be in the race to succeed Solicitor N. A. Sinclair, of Fayetteville. This rumor has been verified. In a conversation with your correspondent Mr. McLean stated positively that he would be in the race, and that means in it to the finish.

In 1903, eleven years ago, he secured license to practice his profession and located here immediately afterwards in his home town. He has never held public office, having devoted himself to his profession in which his rise has been rapid and steady. Two years ago he was selected as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of this county and his successful management of that campaign did much in putting Robeson towards the head of the list.

Farm Work Behind.

The weather man has been sending Maxton a variety in plenty the past week. About the time the last of the twelve-inch snow was disappearing he gave us a severe and cold wind storm following this Thursday by a very heavy rainfall. The earth is watersobbed and the roads, except the improved ones, are in an almost impassable condition. It will be over a week, even with the fairest of weather, before farm work can begin again. Since January little farm work has been accomplished though quite a good bit was done that month and the last month of 1913.

Dr. Gabe H. Croom, a young physician of Wilmington, has just located here for the practice of his profession. He is resident physician at the Maxton hospital.

Improve Hotel Property.

J. P. Wiggins, the owner of the Maple Shade Hotel property, is making plans for the improvement of the hotel. Information is that the improvements are to be quite extensive, that a three-story addition is to be erected at the rear of the present hotel, extending the building through to Patterson street; that the rooms are to have hot and cold running water and to be steam heated with private bath between each two rooms. Plans are now being drawn and it is estimated that the improvements will necessitate the use of over 250,000 brick.

To Vote on Bond Issue.

The special term of the Legislature, held in August of last year, corrected the error in the bill passed at the regular session allowing a vote to be taken on a bond issue for floating the bonded indebtedness of the town and for building and equipping a new graded school. A call has just been issued for this election which will take place early in May. A $20,000 bond issue is to be voted on for floating the town's indebtedness and for street and waterworks improvements and a $30,000 bond issue is to be voted on for building and enquipping a new graded school.

JOHN B. CARLYLE MEMORIAL FELLOWSHIP.

To be Established In Wake Forest College—Alumni Organize.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Lumberton, N. C., March 7.—A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Robeson county alumni of Wake Forest College, was held here last night in the pariors of the First Baptist Church and a county alumni association was formed. Organization was effected with R. C. Lawrence, president; L. R. Varser, vice president; W. Lennon, secretary-treasurer. Rev. C. H. Durham, Stephen McIntyre, E. J. Britt, M. Shepherd and Dr. W. W. Early constitute the executive committee.

It was determined to establish a fellowship in the college to be known as the John B. Carlyle memorial fellowship. It was he who determined that steps be taken to establish a denominational high school in Robeson county and this matter will shortly come before the executive committee for action. Speeches were made by a number of the alumni and after the transaction of business delightful refreshments were served under the auspices of a committee from the Philathea class of the church.

Common sense does not seem to be common enough.

Play ball! Make some base hits and not so many exceedingly base hits.

The seller wants to buy low and sell high. The buyer wants to sell high and buy low.

It is easy for men to get around the truth, but it is hard for them to get around the facts in the case.

The average newspaper pays—the community. It pays the community more than it pays the publishers.

Some men oppose a good thing because it is favored by a man who is mean, according to their way of judging men.

The narrow skirt manages to hold its own in spite of the disagreeable March winds that serve the good purpose of drying up the streets.

One good rule for any man to follow is to jump off while the train is running slow instead of waiting to be put off by the conductor while the train is getting up its speed.

A woman knows she can trust her husband, but she would rather not have to do it. She prefers for him to come home early unless she is with him when he is out late.

The March hare which went mad doubtless must have tried to stray up North and take chances on the kind of March weather that is reported and pictured in the Northern papers.

A South Carolina papers reports that "William Jones was shot in the hind end of his wagon." However, New York papers now and then report that "gangsters continue to shoot men in the East Side."

The market reports say: "Coffee strong." Suits most everybody if the cream is rich. If two pints make a quart of cream, how many quarts of cream are there in the tick infested country near Wilmington?

Keep on keeping your underwear on till the 20th of May. That is what we were once advised by a doctor, but he was not a Charlotte doctor, who necessarily wants the 20th of May recognized because something happened in Mecklenburg along about May 20th, 1775.

The unwelcome news comes that the cotton mills at Nashua, N. H., have shut down, throwing a thousand hands out of work. The tariff, which Republicans would prefer to blame, let an ice gorge and flood in the river put a stop to the factories, although they cannot keep up with their orders.

The United States and other nations are not disposed to intervene in Mexico, but when the war ends they will insist on reparation. Along about that time the Mexicans will wish they had tried to get along without war. Some people who don't think very much don't think war is—oh, well, everybody knows what General Sherman said.

Says the Durham Herald: "As the State chairman only represents the party, we are not caring who the Democrats put up." Even so, a State chairman has been known to have to quit work to go to the United States Senate, or go to work as a United States marshal. The right sort of State chairman is liable to have all sorts of luck.

The Hon. Gifford Pinchot has thrown his hat in the ring for the United States Senatorship in Pennsylvania. Pinch's hat doesn't look good to the newspapers in the Keystone State so they are kicking it all around the ring. Col. Pinchot has stated what he stands for, but he overlooked the fact that he would have to stand a whole lot from the press.

President Wilson on Friday evening entertained the Hon. Oscar W. Underwood at the White House. It has been reported that Mr. Underwood is rather inclined not to vote for repeal of the free toll clause of the Panama Canal act, but Republicans won't be able to recognize the fact the President and Mr. Underwood could have a nice time together without mentioning tolls.

WATCHFUL WAITING.

President Wilson's Mexican policy is to let the Mexicans fight it out a reasonable time instead of sending Americans over there to get killed and to kill Mexicans because they are killing each other. Up to now, trouble in Mexico has called for the sacrifice of thousands of Mexican lives. Intervention, either now or at any other time, would call for the sacrifice of thousands more of Mexican lives and probably a greater loss of American lives, as intervening forces would have to battle on the offensive instead of on the defensive. That is one reason why President Wilson adopted his policy of "watchful waiting."

A large number of American papers indulge in sneering and sarcastic references to "watchful waiting," but when the tragedy of intervention is being enacted, if that is inevitable, watch the jingo papers turn their guns on Wilson because of some of the eventualities which the jingoes cannot foresee and which they do not seem to be able to conceive may create a problem for us ten times bigger than Mexico's is for her.

Jacob Riis, lawyer and writer, who is known as Col. Roosevelt's "Boswell," was in New Orleans on Thursday and in an interview declared that "President Wilson is one of the greatest dynamic forces that the country has ever produced." However, Mr. Riis, while having a great deal of respect and admiration for the President, regards "watchful waiting" as a mistake. He said: "Intervention in Mexico must come. Mr. Wilson, a high-minded man, cannot see the Mexicans as they really are—unfit as a whole to govern themselves, ignorant, cruel, and revengeful."

We have no doubt President Wilson knows that about the Mexicans as well as Mr. Riis knows it, but Mr. Riis overlooks the fact that he furnishes himself one of the very reasons why intervention in the affairs of an unfit, ignorant, cruel, revengeful people as a whole, would make intervention a greater problem than if the Mexicans were fit to govern themselves. Those who urge intervention seem to assume that we can lick the unfitness, ignorance, cruelty and vengefulness out of the Mexicans, whereas, they would not be any more fit for self-government after we thrashed them than they are now. In fact, war with us would further exhaust their already exhausted resources, and we would leave them (if we could leave them) in a worse condition than before.

If we didn't leave them, we would saddle on ourselves years of administration of a people's government without the consent of the governed, and certainly that would be no picnic for us among a people who make heroes of assassins. Taking it for granted that we finally may leave them, we would turn over the country to that same unfit, ignorant, cruel and vengeful people, while intervention would be no guarantee that more insurrections would not break out just as soon as our armies left.

Of course, we may finally have to intervene, but when we do we may as well go into Mexico with our eyes open to the fact that in settling Mexico's problem our way we will make a great many more problems of our own. Intervention is only one of the plagues in the Pandora box from which we would take the lid in Mexico. President Wilson's "watchful waiting" means postponement of an evil day till it is less evil. It postpones a costly military expedition till it would be expeditious—till the task would be easier of accomplishment than were the United States to act in haste and play the bull in Mexico's china shop. "Watchful waiting" has saved this country no end of trouble up to now, and the country will trust President Wilson till he exhausts his wisdom and is compelled to plunge the country into war that will last two years and trouble that will last us half a century.

The country ought to be willing to match Wilson's wisdom against the babble of the boobs.

THE DEATH OF HON. B. F. GRADY.

The death of former Congressman B. F. Grady at his home at Clinton on Friday removes from the State one of its ablest and most loyal sons. He was 82 years of age, and while his death was not altogether unexpected, hundreds who knew him will grieve that so true a man has departed this life.

In many respects, Mr. Grady was a remarkable man, but his retiring disposition and unostentatious life prevented his reputation from being heralded abroad as reputations go in these days when notoriety rather than reputation is what impresses the throng. He was a man of learning and was more sage and philosopher than statesman, which he never aspired to be, although he was a profound political student and wise public counselor. He was a man of the staunchest integrity and loftiest character, altogether too modest for a man of his fine intellect and great attainments.

Mr. Grady was descended from Revolutionary patriots, his paternal grandfather having been killed on the patriot side at the Battle of Moore's Creek, near Wilmington. He was himself a true and tried soldier, having served in the Confederate army during the Civil War. He served four years in Congress as the Democratic representative from the Third district, and throughout his life he was an educator and a man of letters. He wrote ably for the press at times, and was the author of a valuable historic work entitled "The Southern Cause from a Southern Viewpoint." That work not only has marked literary merit, but it is history or commentary on history that should be handed down to generations yet unborn.

PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRATS.

All Democrats are progressive but some are more so than others in taking up some of the ideas that are either the outgrowth of Democratic principles or popular government. We admit that there is a progressive Democratic party but we hardly think there will be a Progressive Democratic party, in the sense that it will be a new political organization separate from the militant Democratic party.

We take it that the getting together of such progressive Democrats as Mr. Clarence Poe, Dr. H. Q. Alexander, and Mr. J. W. Bailey is not the forerunner of another party in North Carolina, as thrown out in a hint in the Washington correspondence of the Raleigh News and Observer, but that it is a movement along Democratic lines, just a little ahead of the old line. Nevertheless, it is said that the moving spirits in this progressive movement will soon have a meeting in Raleigh to "perfect the machinery of an organization." They will be joined by others who believe as they do, and their purpose, it seems, is to have the ultra-progressive type of Democrats placed in the ascendency in North Carolina.

Some of the progressive ideas of the day will come slow in North Carolina and their advocates may as well content themselves to be patient and work hopefully along not very far ahead of the Old Guard.

PORT IMPROVEMENT IN NEW YORK.

According to an interesting article in the New York Journal of Commerce, the Merchants' Association has proposed to the city authorities the adoption of a comprehensive plan for the development of the port of New York. To bring about that end, the association urges the creation of a board to be known as "the Port of New York Commission" to include in its make-up representatives from the City of New York, its commercial organizations, the States of New York and New Jersey, the United States and the railroad interests.

The proposal was recommended after careful study by the associations' committee on harbor, docks and terminals. Exporters, importers, merchants and transportation people heartily endorse it. The association suggests that the plan for development include all the waters around New York and that all port developments be made to conform to it. What the association aims at is to bring about a systematic development of the harbor with a view to better doing the commerce of the port. Economic handling of ships and cargoes is one of the great needs in New York, and it is realized that if something is not done, commerce will drift to other ports.

Congressman Godwin has made the amende honorable to the Woodrow Wilson Club of Wilmington, disclaiming having made any charge of discourtesy to him in connection with his speech here during the last campaign. Mr. Godwin's statement, published in yesterday's Washington correspondence of The Star, is entirely in line with the facts in the case and this paper is glad to give it space.

People raise cain about free speech but have very little to say about free water. Towns which boast of making their waterworks pay a profit, don't do anything of the kind. They make the people pay that profit on water, about the last thing in the world that ought to be taxed. Air manages to escape the tax gatherers but water can't run fast enough to get out of the way.

If it's as bad in Mexico as they say it is, it may account for the fact that Villa has not been able to round up any South Carolinians. Some men know when to get two or three years the start on such duffers as Villa.

Shriners' Council.

As it is approaching the time when Shriners wish to consider how is the best, quickest and cheapest way to get to Atlanta, Georgia, for the meeting of the Imperial Council, Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, the Seaboard Air Line Railway announces that they will operate from Raleigh a Shrine Special on May 10th, schedule of which is given elsewhere in this paper, to Atlanta, Ga., and return, consisting of All Steel Electrically Lighted Equipment. The sleepers upon arrival at Atlanta are to be parked at Inman Park siding, on the Seaboard, which location is in the best residential section and the most desirable in that city. On account of the hotels in Atlanta at this time being crowded, these sleepers are to be used for living purposes during the convention. The necessary sanitary arrangements are being made and everything is being done by the Seaboard officials, which is an assurance that the special train party will have a delightful sojourn in Atlanta.

In addition to the special train from Raleigh, the Seaboard Air Line Railway expects to operate special trains for the Richmond, Norfolk-Portsmouth and New York Shriners, having been selected by these Shriners on account of their desirable parking location and excellent facilities for handling them, which bespeaks in glowing terms for the Seaboard Air Line Railway's progressive manner of doing business.

Attractive Shrine literature has been gotten out by this company and is being sent broadcast throughout North Carolina and the officials are looking forward to a movement of gigantic proportion.—Advertisement.

POLITICAL SOBRIETY—THAT THOSE WHO RUN MAY READ.

To the Editor of the Star:

We see advertised in the papers lately, pro and con, as to whether we should change our county fathers. The men who decide these issues are those who vote their convictions at the polls. Only at the last election the voters decided that a certain set of gentlemen were not entitled to the privilege of running the county affairs; why, then, should these same gentlemen attempt, at the very next election, to impose on the confidence of the people by asking that they be reinstated?

The present incumbents, Messrs. Moore and Kerr, are not perfect, as some would have them, but they are above the average. Is it not fair to assume that the old board, referring specifically to Messrs. McEachern and Voliers, would give us the same deal we have already had, which has proven highly unsatisfactory? Take the case of Blake, the former superintendent of the county home: If the old board is again put in power, is it not fair to assume that this "warm constituent" will get his old job at $1,500 per year? Further, can we not assume that this is the bone of his contention? It is very natural for a man to argue for his job—and how he does argue. Are there not a few others who would like, with a similar view, to see the "old machine" in action? It is my conviction that Messrs. Kerr and Moore have kept the faith, and therefore, those who believe in a square deal should show their appreciation by voting for them. If this is not true, then the public is entitled to hear from those who have other motives than to get back on the county payroll.

Hooray! Blood Free of Impurities

Eczema Gone! Acne, Tetter, Rash, Pimples, Carbuncles, Boils—Banished!

It is certainly remarkable how quickly the action of S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, shows itself in the skin.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which peculiarly stimulates cellular or glandular activity to select from the blood, or from the fine network of blood vessels in the skin, those elements which it requires for regeneration.

Thus pimples, acne, eczema, lupus, or any other blood condition that attacks the skin or seeks an outlet through the skin is met with the antidotal effect of S. S. S.

This is why skin troubles vanish so readily and why they do not return. Under the influence of S. S. S. this fine network of blood vessels in the skin is constantly selecting from the blood the nutrition required for healthy tissue, and the cause of disease is just as constantly being removed, scattered and rendered harmless.

You will be surprised and delighted at the quick change if you will use S. S. S., the famous blood purifier. Its action in the skin is quite sensational. These facts are most fully explained in a book on skin troubles sent by the Swift Specific Co., 213 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. Get a bottle to-day and banish all skin afflictions.

When you ask for S. S. S. look out for the common trick of trying to sell you something else. Don't be misled.

ADDRESS OF FRANK HERBST, CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF OF NEW HANOVER COUNTY, TO THE VOTERS OF WILMINGTON.

In his address to the voters of the Fifth Ward of Wilmington, Frank Herbst, candidate for sheriff of New Hanover county, being introduced by Mr. C. H. Huband, spoke as follows, outlining his claims upon the electorate for support in the primary to be held on Wednesday of this week:

"Fellow Citizens:

"I do not know that I am deserving of the high praise which the gentleman, who introduced me to you, bestowed upon me. If, by my feeble efforts, I have done anything that has inured to the benefit of the public, then I did it because I thought it a duty as a citizen. As I am now aspiring to an office, a gift in the hands of the people, I deem it proper to appear before you and make known my views and feelings, and in that way acquaint you with my personality. There are three things which a candidate for office should possess: First, Character and ability. Second, Thorough knowledge of the fundamentals of the government of which he expects to be a part. Third, Humane sympathies for the uplift and welfare of the masses. You must be the judges of these requirements in the man. I have lived among you and have been a citizen of this county for the last 22 years. Those who know me best, need no further enlightenment and those who do not may gather from the following what are my convictions and sentiments.

"A government of the people, by the people and for the people, represents in a nutshell the principle of Democracy. A principle, which formed the guiding sirit of the founding of the government of the United States of America. Europe, at that time still governed, as a whole, by the principle of kingships and absolute rulerships, looked with amused condescensions and forebodings of failure upon what they termed an experiment in government of the new world. Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of conscience and separation of church and State, were in their eyes such a radical departure from their orthodox standards, that naught but disaster could ensue.

"But America survived, despite the darkest prognostications from across the water and has not only firmly established the principles of Democracy within her own environs but is today enjoying her triumph by setting the example to the rest of the world.

"But this triumph was not obtained without sacrifice. Internal strife and dissensions were frequent. Reactionary and self-seeking elements were ever threatening, openly and insidiously, to disrupt and usurp the rule of the people. The clouds of fratricidal war hung at onetime like a pall over the destiny of this nation. In latter years we passed through an era of high financiering, industrialism and mad money making that blinded us to all else, and during that period we erected upon the foundation, which the fathers of this republic established, a structure, that became more topsided as it grew high. Yes, had Thomas Jefferson been able to arise from his grave and view the perversions of the intent and purpose of his labors, he would have been unable to recognize Democracy in its tattered uniform.

"Happily for America that structure tumbled, but without impairing the foundation, and we are again concerned, under the able leadership of President Wilson, to establish a government that will be compatible with its fundamentals.

"As we are getting back into the straight path, it becomes obvious that a great deal has already been accomplished. Nationally speaking, the great corporations are showing positive signs of wishing to comply with the law. They are beginning to realize that social service must be paramount to mere money making. The great railroads are being made to abandon their monopolizing connections and the large banks are loosing their super-control by the new and government-controlled currency system. Interlocking directorates, between these powerful factors, will be forbidden by a law that puts the stamp of criminality and personal guilt upon its transgressors. The income tax, which taxes only people of means, and in proportion more as they are rich, establishes a principle of taxation that, while not new, is novel, in the United States. It is sound and just. It directly puts the burdens on those who can afford to carry them. The tariff has been reduced to a level where every business man can again enjoy equal opportunity. Congress is also taking notice of the great question of labor and capital. We are learning to know that human rights must no longer be made subservient to property rights.

"But we are yet far behind in the execution of the ideas which the progressive spirit of the age demands, when it comes to State matters. The people of North Carolina are restive and want to move on, while politicians and officeholders are hesitating. The legislative branch of our State government is particularly in need of overhauling. In the near future the people will be given the opportunity to vote on the proposed amendments to the State constitution which, if adopted, will greatly relieve the present intolerable conditions. However, it will require the watchfulness and clearheadedness of the voters to see that by no plausibility on the part of the special interests, they permit themselves to have these very important measures defeated. By some trick of the imagination, the majority, in charge of the framing of the constitutional amendments, presumed that as a State-wide measure, the intiative, referendum and recall was not wanted by the people and, therefore, though against strong protest, left this very desirable feature out. It is to be hoped that the citizens will yet have the opportunity to demand its inclusion.

"Now we come to that part of our government which has a most direct bearing on the individual, and that is, city and county affairs. The conditions that confront us here are not very much different from those which we encounter in State and National affairs. The difference is only in the size. You will find on close examination that, special interests and self-seeking individuals are as much in evidence here as in the larger premises, dominating, as it were, to a greater or lesser degree, government, to the disadvantage of the masses. Why there should be such a wide margin of difference in the valuation of properties around this town had always been a mystery to me, until I took a peep into politics, and I found why some folks were so anxious to have their particular candidate elected to office. As it stands now, the little fellow who owns a home or a few small houses, by reason of the unequal assessments, bears the burdens of taxation, while the big man, with the large properties is, in comparison, assessed ridiculously low. While the rich man ought to pay more taxes in proportion, because he is more able to pay, this principle stands now actually reversed in Wilmington, and the little fellow, who can least afford to pay, is made to carry the load. A stop must be put to this injustice when assessment time comes around.

"Another matter that is of vital interest to the people of this community is the public service situation, as regards gas, light, power and traction. As to myself, I am in favor of the ownership of all public utilities by the city. But it is not always possible to bring this about, and regulation is the next best thing. These utilities are now in the hands of a concern which enjoys a practical monopoly in them. There is no doubt that, for the sake of economical production, this is a good thing and this company's over-abundance of profits shows this. But this fact also shows that the charges made for these commodities and services are higher than they ought to be. Taking into consideration the fact that, this company does its business on the people's property—the streets and sidewalks of the city—for which it pays only a nominal tax, then we have every right to expect to share in the profits by a lowering of the rates. The franchise did not cost them a single cent. God Almighty put Wrightsville Beach at our very door, and yet the majority of our people are debarred from its use and beneficial and health giving effect because this company has seen fit to charge a prohibitive price for transportation. The officials of this public service corporation must come to the understanding that the nature of their business makes them responsible to the public and that they have no right to extract more from the public in the way of charges than would give them a fair return on their investment. Nobody wishes to do them an injustice, but the people want a square deal and I believe they are going to get it.

"The dominant note in the present readjustment of things political and economical is social justice. It is the center point between two extreme conditions. As nature equalizes all things, so will social justice finally triumph. The rich man will never enjoy peace of mind until the poor man enjoys peace of living. There are too many people who live from hand to mouth; too many are underpaid. Look at the pitiable salaries which the teachers get for the hard and arduous task of moulding the young into acceptable citizenship. Investigate the miserly compensation of the policemen and firemen, who constantly risk their lives protecting limb and property. Think of the long hours and small pay of the men who drive the street cars. What inducement is held out to the laborers, clerks, office men and others who spend their substance in continuous drudgery while trying to make a living? But I believe the day is not far off when every workingman will get the full measure in return for his labor. I believe they are beginning to see a light. Organization is the keynote. No better evidence can be had of this than the organizing of the laboring people of this city, who are crystalizing their powers in a representative Trades Council, a body which is now and must in future be reckoned with.

"Another notable movement is that of the various bodies of ladies who stand out for civic improvement. Prominent among which is the Housewives' League, whose activities are rapidly bringing about civic uplift and the abolishing of abuses, which the populace has suffered under the past. Let us all uphold and support them.

"Now, it is said that the pen is mightier than the sword. But there is something that is mightier than both, and that is public opinion. It was this great force which during the last National campaign, irrespective of party lines, re-enthroned the rule of the people. It is this great power which stirred to action the governmental forces of our State in proposing the amendments to the State Constitution, which, after their adoption will secure for North Carolina a more enlightened, more efficient and more just state of affairs. It is public opinion in this community which has become awakened and is crying aloud and persistently for a square deal.

"We can readily see that public opinion is a powerful weapon, which, if rightly used, properly directed, keen and always on the alert, will do more to hasten the coming of a brighter day than anything else. And here rings into my ears the prophecy of Christ: 'Ye shall know the truth and the truth will make you free.' In these few words, He foreshadowed the coming of universal education and universal freedom. In fact, He conditioned man's freedom upon knowledge, which is gained by education. Knowledge means liberty. But freedom will not descend upon a people, they must raise themselves up to it. Therefore, it becomes incumbent upon them to seek understanding. Living under a constitution that fosters freedom in every direction, more so than any other nation on earth, we must admit that we have taken but scant care of our birthright. We have only ourselves to blame that things political and economical have drifted into the present conditions. Indifference on the part of the populace will invariably breed ring politics and when ringsters are in power, the people's cause suffers; then do the special interests reap a harvest at the people's expense.

"I urge, therefore, with all of my power, and for every reason of humanity and patriotism that you take a more thorough interest in the affairs of your government. Not only round election time, but all the time. Your free institutions are always in danger. The wolf in sheep's clothing is always about and you must learn to divide the sheep from the goats. I consider it the first duty of every man, woman and child to uphold and safeguard our liberties, and second, to check that kind of liberty which turns into license, and by license I mean lawlessness. We must make every effort to put our government upon a more efficient basis and uphold only those who unmistakably dedicate their services to that end.

Under such conditions then will the collectivity of public opinion and interest act as a constant force to prevent stagnation and spur on public officials to do their best for the general good of the masses. Let us more and more base Democracy upon the brotherhood of man and let us never forget the old and true saying:

"'Eternal Vighance is the Price of Liberty.'"

RESULT A SURPRISE

Brunswick's Senatorial Vote Almost Equally Divided

Jos. W. Ruark, Esq., Received 9 5-6 Votes and Mr. W. B. Cooper 7 1-6 at Supply Convention Yesterday at Noon.

Brunswick county's 17 votes in the district Senatorial convention were almost equally divided at the county convention held at Supply yesterday at noon between Jos. W. Ruark, Esq., of Southport, the candidate from that county, and Mr. W. B. Cooper, of this city, who is in the race from New Hanover. Mr. Ruark secured 9 5-6 votes and Mr. Cooper 7 1-6. The result came as a considerable surprise to the Democrats of this county, who expected that, because of the controversy between the two counties as to which shall name the Senator this time, the Brunswick vote would be cast almost solid for the candidate from that county.

Discussing the matter here last night, local Democrats voiced themselves as being of the opinion that since Brunswick has given her candidate only a little more than half of her total strength in the convention, the New Hanover Democrats who might have been disposed to vote for the Brunswick candidate because of a sense of fair play, will now feel at liberty to support Mr. Cooper, and his nomination is now regarded as almost practically assured.

The Convention Yesterday.

The convention at Supply yesterday was called to order at noon by Geo. H. Bellamy, Esq., chairman of the Brunswick County Executive Committee and ex-officio chairman of the county convention. Mr. Peter Ruark was elected as permanent chairman and presided. Two secretaries were chosen and the chairman then announced that the business of the convention was the election of delegates to the District Senatorial Convention and the nomination of candidates. Mr. Ruark was nominated by Mr. M. C. Guthrie, of Southport, and his name received a number of seconds. Mr. J. E. Clayton, of Excelsior, placed the name of Mr. Cooper in nomination and it was seconded by Mr. Wilkes McKeithan, of Lockwood's Folly.

There being no other candidates before the convention the nominations were declared closed and the chairman requested the respective township delegations to retire and make up their votes in accordance with the strength allotted them, based on the vote in the last gubernatorial election, which gives Brunswick a total of 17 votes in the district convention.

It took the delegations only a few minutes to canvass their membership and report their votes.

When the delegations were ready to cast their votes, the Smithville township vote was cast solid for Mr. Ruark, but on protest from several of its members this was overruled by the chair, and the delegation instructed to retire and make up a second vote.

The Vote Taken.

This time the Smithville vote was divided, 6 1-2 votes being cast for Ruark and 1-2 vote for Cooper. Northwest township voted solid for Cooper, while Townsreek, Waccamaw, Shallotte and Lockwood's Folly were divided, making the total vote cast for Ruark 9 5-6 and for Cooper 7 1-6.

It was understood here last night that Mr. Ruark's supporters in Brunswick county attribute the split vote to the opposition of Geo. H. Bellamy, whom they declare threw his strength to the New Hanover candidate. It was also stated by those in close touch with Mr. Ruark's candidacy that they will make an especial effort toward securing for Mr. Ruark in the primary in this county Wednesday a vote sufficiently large to offset Mr. Cooper's.

Reports of the action of the convention were received here on the return of Wilmingtonians in attendance. Among these were L. Clayton Grant, Esq., Jos. W. Little, Esq., Mr. Henderson Cole and Mr. Thos. E. Cooper, the latter a brother of Mr. W. B. Cooper.

The following is a copy of the press report of the convention sent to the Greensboro News and the Raleigh News and Observer last night by their correspondent, Mr. R. E. Ranson, of Southport, The Star having been requested to publish the same, which is done without endorsement or comment on the editorial references contained therein:

Southport, N. C., March 7.—Representative George H. Bellamy, of Brunswick, led the fight today against J. W. Ruark, of Brunswick, for State Senator, and for W. B. Cooper, of New Hanover. It will be remembered that Chairman Harriss, of the New Hanover Executive Committee, argued some time ago that the agreement between the two counties as to Senator should be abrogated because Bellamy would be the nominee. Ruark was Brunswick's candidate and Bellamy led the fight against him. The convention voted 19 for Ruark and 15 for Cooper. Never was there a stronger argument for a legalized primary than that to the convention today went a life-long Republican, W. T. Pinner, sent to the convention in a conveyance hired by D. O. Daniel, of Southport, and cashier of the bank of which Thomas Cooper is president of, W. B. Cooper is ex-president, and voted for Cooper as against the choice of Brunswick Democrats.

The convention was held in the open air and every man present could and did take part in the convention. Men brought to the convention by Cooper voted against the interest of Brunswick Democrats.

Democrats everywhere are calling for a legalized primary.

George H. Bellamy has been the only Democratic representative from this county in years and yet, under the law, Republicans were able to help defeat the will of the Democrats. County Superintendent of Schools Guthrie pointed out that the Southport paper, owned by Cooper and Cooper supporters, of New Hanover, had closed its columns against the Brunswick man. The convention today was the most exciting in years and the fight will be carried into New Hanover next Wednesday when the primary takes place there.

INSTITUTE OPENS TODAY

Prof. Honline Will Give Lectures on Religious Education—Mass Meeting This Afternoon.

Beginning with a mass meeting for men and women this afternoon at 4:45 at the Young Men's Christian Association, the Religious Work Committee of the association will conduct a series of lectures on Religious Education, Prof. M. A. Honline, of New York, having been secured by the committee for the occasion.

Prof. Honline has made a special study of child life during the past few years, and comes well prepared to give those who are so fortunate as to hear him a finer insight into this important problem. He was with the Men and Religion Movement team that traveled through the South two years ago, leaving a splendid impression everywhere. Last summer he taught at the Y. M. C. A. Summer school at Black Mountain and at present is connected with the International Y. M. C. A. committee in their religious educational work.

Following is the programme as outlined for the three-day institute:

This afternoon at 4:45 o'clock there will be a mass meeting for men and women at the Y. M. C. A. Subject, "The Problem of Religious Education." Tonight at 8 o'clock there will be a union service of Sunday school workers at the First Baptist church. Subject, "The Bible as a Factor in Civilization."

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock Prof. Honline will address the ministers of the city at their regular weekly meeting. Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. there will be a mothers' meeting at which Prof. Honline will speak on "The Child, Its Nature and Nurture." He will meet the Fellowship Bible classes at the Y. M. C. A. at 7 o'clock and at 8 o'clock there will be a united institute at the First Baptist church. Subject, "The Sunday School as An Educational Institution."

Tuesday afternoon—Woman's clubs 4 P. M., at Y. M. C. A. lecture room, subject, "The Child and Society." Father and Son banquet, at 7 P. M., at boys' lobby, Y. M. C. A. building, subject, "The Young Man Problem."

THOUSAND MEMBERS THE AIM

Y. W. C. A. Membership Campaign to be Launched—Plans Will be Adopted Tomorrow Morning

Plans for a systematic campaign to secure 1,000 pledged members for the Young Woman's Christian Association which will be organized in this city, will be adopted at a meeting of the chairmen of the various committees, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Donald MacRae tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

At this meeting the members of the various committees will be named and details arranged for beginning the membership campaign at once. Mrs. M. L. Stover is chairman of the membership committee and will have charge of the campaign for members.

The membership committee will number over 100 ladies, and the campaign will be conducted along systematic lines. Every church in the city will be represented on the committee, and the city will probably be divided into districts, with sub-committees in charge of each. Membership application cards are being printed and these will be used in the campaign.

Miss Ada Starkweather, of Charlotte, city secretary of the South Atlantic Field Committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, has been in the city for some time now, working to prepare the way for the organization of a local branch of the Y. W. C. A. She has found much interest in the organization of a Y. W. C. A., and with a number of ladies who have been advocating the matter, has completed the preliminary arrangements for the organization.

The ladies have found that the young women of the city are vitally interested in the organization of an association and many have signified their intentions of becoming members. With such encouragement, the ladies feel that it will be possible to secure fully 1,000 members to start off with, and the membership campaign will be launched with that number as its aim.

While preparatory work along other lines will continue in connection with the membership campaign, the actual organization of the association will not be taken up until the membership campaign is over.

RE-ORGANIZED ST. PAUL'S.

New Vestry and Arrangements for Services in Parish.

It will be an item of interest in the religious life of the city to know that the work at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, since the recent completion of the handsome house of worship at 16th and Market streets, has been fully organized and services in future will be held at stated times, the church having in view a rector regularly in charge after the first of April.

On Wednesday night of the past week, the old vestry of the church, realizing the desirability of placing the government of the parish more nearly in the hands of those living nearer the church, re-organized with the election of the following: Geo. O. Gaylord, senior warden; J. L. Hazelhurst, junior warden; J. H. Hinton, J. Haughton James, John VanB. Metts, V. R. C. King and W. H. Northrop, Jr. After building the new church at the new location and getting the work firmly established, Messrs. R. H. Pickett, R. C. Cantwell and George Howie, members of the former vestry, desired to retire in favor of those in closer proximity to the church and their resignations were accepted with regret and profound thanks for their splendid services. The church at its new location will occupy a field for greater usefulness in church work and the vestry feels every encouragement.

The Sunday School was recently reorganized and is already in a flourishing condition. The superintendent is Mr. R. E. Tapp and Mr. Clayton Giles, Jr., is secretary and treasurer

Moves to Wilmington.

Mr. W. R. Rivenbark and wife, of Burgaw, have moved to this city and Mr. Rivenbark will have charge of Overlake Pavilion at Greenfield Lake. Mr. W. R. Rivenbark has been in Wilmington for some time as manager at the pavilion but Mrs. Rivenbark only arrived the past week.

SOLE DISTRIBUTING POINT

Galena Signal Oil Company to Serve North and South Carolina From This City—Contract.

That Wilmington will henceforth be the sole distributing point for North and South Carolina for the products of the Galena Signal Oil Company was the announcement made yesterday by Col. Geo. L. Morton, Southern manager for the company, following the awarding of a contract Friday afternoon to Mr. A. D. O'Brien, a well known contracting engineer of this city, for the erection of the company's new storage plant to be located on the recently-acquired Garrell property on Smith's Creek. The new plant, it is expected, will be completed in about 90 days, and will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000.

Colonel Morton, a former Wilmingtonian and now located in Atlanta, has been in the city for some days going over details of the plans. He states that the plant here will take the place of two plants now maintained in Columbia and Charleston, S. C., and that this city will thus become the sole distributing point for the products of the company for North and South Carolina. He stated that a capacity of about 2,000,000 gallons will be necessary to accommodate this territory. The change in the system of distribution will be made solely because of the superior advantage offered by Wilmington.

The plant to be erected here includes a brick warehouse, 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, with concrete cellar, and a brick boiler house, 25 by 40 feet. The contract also calls for the erection of a tank foundation.

The boilers, tanks, pipings, etc., are to be made in the Galena company's Pennsylvania shops, but will be installed by local workmen. The plant is to be built on the unit plan, so that it may be added to as the demand necessitates. It will be in charge of Mr. Geo. W. Branch, of this city, when completed. It will furnish employment to quite a number of men.

The railroads in this section which have heretofore been receiving their lubricating and signal oils from the Columbia and Charleston plants, will henceforth be served from Wilmington.

CAMPAIGN NEARING END

Has Been One of the Most Unique in the Political Annals of New Hanover County.

Two week days remain before the primary is held which will bring to an end one of the hardest fought and bitterest campaigns, and at the same time one of the strangest and most bewildering, in the political annals of New Hanover county. Candidates for county and legislative offices will be chosen and with only two exceptions, every important office is contested with two or more candidates in the field.

Owing to the totally different alignment of factions and forces, the outcome of the present campaign is a matter which even the most observant political prophet is somewhat at sea over. Few disinterested observers will make any attempt to forecast the results of the different contest. In addition, the campaign has been one into which many side issues have been injected, and sensations of one kind or another have followed so rapidly that the political laitay is inclined to hold up its hands in bewilderment, and wonder what it is all about.

The registration books for the primary closed last evening at 6 o'clock, and reports from the different wards and precincts indicate that the registration yesterday was considerably livelier than it has been through the week. The registration books of the 1912 general elections are to be used for the primary, and with the registration of the past week and the names already on the books, it is said that the total registration is up to or above the average.

Tomorrow night at the court house at 8:30 o'clock, a mass meeting will be held, at which W. P. Stacy, Esq., a candidate for the Legislature, will deliver an address. One hour earlier, at 7:30 o'clock, he will speak to the voters of the Fifth ward at Third and Wright streets.

Mr. Frank Herbst, a candidate for sheriff, will speak to the voters of Delgado tomorrow night.

At Woolvin Hall Tuesday night the Independent Club will distribute tickets to its members, and on Wednesday night the hall will be headquarters for the club, the returns from the primary being received there.

WILMINGTON TIES SCORE WITH WILSON YESTERDAY.

Fast and Snappy Game of Basketball Between Teams at Y. M. C. A.

One of the best basketball games of the season was played yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. between the Wilmington and Wilson High School teams which resulted in a tie, the score for each being 20. The game was fast and snappy from start to finish and the final result was always doubtful, first one side being ahead and then the other. The local team stated that they wished to play off the tie but owing to a misunderstanding as to the rules under which a tie was to be played off the visitors did not care to do so.

TO COLUMBUS COUNTY VOTERS:

Bolton, Columbus County, N. C. March 6th, 1914.

To the people of Columbus county, and especially those who have written me letters concerning my candidacy for the lower House of the General Assembly of North Carolina, I wish to state that I am very busy and I take this method of answering all letters sent me on this subject.

I think at this time that I am partly known in all sections of the county, and if my friends want me to serve them they may decide the matter for me, as I cannot afford at this time to quit my business and go over the county to make a canvass for the nomination.

If the people see fit to nominate some other good man, I hope he will look to the interest of the tax-payers of Columbus county, and see that all public questions are voted on and decided by a majority of the people, as I would do if they trust me with this office for this great county.

Thanking my friends for their offers of support and their confidence in me.

Sincerely, A. T. CLARK.

NEW INDUSTRY PROSPERING

Germania Manufacturing Co., Will Soon Work Night and Day Shifts—Mr. Patterson Here.

Mr. C. M. Patterson, formerly vice president of the Southern National Bank, and president of the Germania Manufacturing Company, which organization, it will be recalled, succeeded the Wilmington Handle Company, returned to the city on Friday and is at the Orton Hotel.

When seen by a Star representative yesterday, Mr. Patterson talked freely of his plans concerning the Germania. Questioned as to the progress being made at the plant, Mr. Patterson said:

"Our work of developing the Germania Manufacturing Company has only suffered the annoyances and delays which have characterized other developments all over the country where the investing of Northern capital in new business ventures is concerned. Business conditions in the North have been entirely unfavorable, owing to the fact that new tariffs, changes in administrative policies, the income tax law, a complete innovation in the banking plan as outlined in the Regional Bank bill, railroad rate legislation and many other matters have deeply absorbed the thought of Northern capitalists, and practically served to bring to a standstill all thought of an interest in new outside enterprises.

"Happily," continued Mr. Patterson, "these matters are now in better aspect, and there is gradually developing a situation in which we can better proceed with what we have in mind. I am quite aware that the Germania Manufacturing Company has been subjected to considerable speculation and misinformed comment, locally, with respect to its plans and affairs in general, notwithstanding there are many other evidences of waiting business and deferred operations, even of local interest, which have been occasioned through the same influences just referred to.

"Now in regard to immediate operations, I will say that I have come down with the intention of spending at least a month, and I hope that material advancement may be made within that time. The company, as you know, recently interested Mr. T. A. D. Jones, who is already on the ground and has been formally installed as treasurer of the organization. It is fully expected that Mr. Jones' connection will mean the injection of that renowned 'Yale Spirit' and that things will move around him as they were wont to move on the famous Yale team of which he was the central figure. Mr. Jones expects to bring his family down soon, and I am sure the city of Wilmington is to be congratulated upon the acquisition.

"We are now engaged in installing additional machinery, including a 250 horsepower engine. This engine will furnish electric lights and power, not only for our own use, but as well for the use of such other plants as may be located upon our grounds."

"You speak of other plants to be located upon the Germania site," asked the reporter, "is there anything of this kind in sight just at present?"

"Well," said Mr. Patterson, "we have several things in view. You know we have a wonderful supply market here in the way of good workable material, and our property embraces not only 900 feet of the best water front, but runs back an equal distance. The railroad is at one corner of the property, and we are preparing now to run a side-track right into it, the preliminary steps being already under way. These things are being noted by some manufacturers, and negotiations are pending now with some good people who wish to occupy some of our land for plants of different character. Meantime we are, ourselves, installing electric lights to enable the Germania to put on a night shift, and we expect within a few days to be working at night. This is necessary in order to complete orders already in hand. Meantime we have sufficient engagements, with the best class of exporters, to employ not only our present facilities, but to take care of much additional equipment as soon as we can make necessary arrangements to install the same. Of course, we have been gradually improving the Germania plant all along since we took the business over from the Wilmington Handle Company. Much new machinery has been added, we have recently completed a new dry kiln which enables us to get our handles and other products more quickly on the market, and we have also thoroughly re-adjusted and set up in more economical alignment much of the machinery hitherto employed."

"What about your wharfage facilities, Mr. Patterson?" asked the reporter.

"I am glad you asked me that," he rejoined, "for we have made already quite an outlay along that line of improvement, having set over 700 piling along a good portion of our frontage, and, of course, it will not take much greater outlay to insure the very best character of wharf front. In the deed to our property we not only own the area already stated, but we own and have the further right to build about 100 feet off shore, to the deep water channel or harbor line. This, we confidently expect, will be eventually developed in the creation of over-water warehouses with central or side slips for the easy loading and discharging of cargo, and it will be an easy matter to continue our side-track out to the slips, or at least to the warehouse fronts. This latter work, however, is not immediately projected, all being dependent, to more or less extent, upon the interest which we hope to encourage upon the part of some desirable people who are showing interest in our proposition."

YOUNG PEOPLE MARRIED.

Ceremony Performed at Home of the Bride's Parents Yesterday.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Roderick, on 11th street, between Castle and Queen, Miss Mollie Roderick and Mr. Hans Anderson were married yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by Justice Borneman in his usual happy style.

Following the ceremony they received the warm congratulations and elicitations of the many friends present. They will make their home in this city.

Two-thirds of the people of Wilmington live on moderate incomes, and yet, for some reason, the Sheriff of the county receives a salary of $3,500.00 with all clerk hire paid. Very few of the highest officials of the State get so large an amount. $2,500.00 is enough. Without reservation I am in favor of and insist on this change. FRANK HERBST.

THE STATE CHAIRMANSHIP.

Both Mr. Carr and Mr. McLean in Wilmington Yesterday—Meeting.

Interest in the selection of a chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee at Raleigh Tuesday was accentuated here yesterday by the return of J. O. Carr, Esq., to the city, after a week in attendance upon Pender Superior Court at Burgaw, and the arrival of A. W. McLean, Esq., of Lumberton, on professional business before Judge Rountree in chambers.

Both were asked for developments with reference to their respective candidacies for the State chairmanship, but each declined to talk for publication. It was generally conceded here last night, however, that neither Mr. McLean nor Mr. Carr will allow his name to be considered for the chairmanship of the committee at the meeting Tuesday, if there is any other candidate who really desires the honor. While these gentlemen would not shirk any duty due the Democratic party, they apparently do not care to oppose any avowed candidate and are not encouraging the use of their names.

POLICE KEPT BUSY.

Number of Arrests Made Last Night for Various Offenses.

The police were kept busy last night with the result that there will be quite a number to face the Recorder tomorrow morning. Mr. B. G. Gurganus, a guard at the East Wilmington convict camp, on his way to the city yesterday afternoon, found three negro boys on the eastern outskirts of the city loitering along the road. They had two new pistols with which they were playing. He took them in charge and turned them over to the police department. Their names are Charlie Thomas, James Smith and Alonzo Boston.

James Hooper and Frank Smith, both colored, had a fisticuff last night and were arrested by Policeman W. R. Applebury. Neither was seriously hurt. Tony Williams, colored, was riding a bicycle on the wrong side of the street, and was taken into custody by Policeman P. W. Jacobs.

Van Bufail, colored, charged with assaulting a female, was arrested by Policeman J. F. Jordan. Frances Willard, colored, was arrested by Policeman J. O. Bullard for interfering with the officer in the arresting of Bufail. George Pigford, colored, charged with disorderly conduct, was arrested by Policeman Frank George.

Up to midnight there had been two arrests made for being drunk, both of these being white men.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT.

Alex. Clark, Colored, Nabbed by Police on Warrant from Wilson.

Within 30 minutes after they had received the warrant and particulars from Wilson, Policemen T. M. Hall and Leon George had Alex. Clark, colored, in custody yesterday morning. Clark is charged in the warrant with having grabbed two white women on the night of January 3rd, and when they ran away shot at them. He says that he knows nothing about the alleged assault and that he was in South Carolina at the time.

He was found by the officers yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the house of Rena Davis, colored, on Racket Store alley in bed with his shoes on. He says that he has been sick for the last month and unable to work. His whereabouts was revealed to the authorities through an acquaintance at Norfolk, Va., who wrote to the chief of police at that place and told him, it is stated, just where he could be found in Wilmington and at what hour.

He was lodged in the city prison and the Wilson chief of police notified yesterday. An officer will probably be sent for him today.

Wilmingtonians should be proud of a place like the Southern Cafe to invite your friends. Open day and night. (advertisement.)-2t

MOTHERS' MEETING AT MASONBORO FRIDAY.

The pupils of Masonboro public schools delightfully entertained the mothers and young ladies of that community Friday with a short but entertaining programme consisting of several songs, recitations, duets and instrumental solos, also giving a short play. There was a prize awarded for the best chicken coop, this being won by Jack Orrell. There were other excellent coops made by James Herring, R. Orrell, James Walton, Monroe George, Ray Buck, Roger Hewlett, Jessie Farrow, Ivey and Henry Dixon.

To the girls a prize was given the one who made the best pie, this being won by Myrtle Herring, of the third grade. There were many other nice pies made. Among those submitting samples being Meba Walton, Mary Lizzie Hines, Lizzie George, Inez Teachey, Jennie Kirkham and Mildred McGowan. The prize was a cake made by Mrs. E. A. Orrell. After the programme the girls served cake and pie to the ladies. Much credit is due the teachers, Misses Bessie Kelley and Bessie Hayes for the delightful evening.

The Rev. Oliver J. Whildin, general missionary to the deaf mutes, will be in Wilmington on Monday, March 9th, and will conduct services in St. John's church, Third and Red Cross streets, that night at 8 o'clock, for the deaf mutes of Wilmington and vicinity. The rector of St. John's will read the service, and at the same time Mr. Whildin will render it in the sign language of the deaf mute brethren. All are cordially invited to this service.

LOCAL DOTS.

—Mr. J. B. Hales arrived in the city last night from Wilson to take Alex. Clark, colored, who was arrested here yesterday, back to Wilson. He will return this morning.

—Mrs. Helen Waltman is demonstrating Wear-Ever aluminum cooking articles at Peck & Holloway's, and will be there until Wednesday evening. The ladies of the city are cordially invited to attend the demonstrations.

—Percy Glosky, colored, who lives in the Masonboro section, swore out warrants yesterday before Justice Bornemann for the arrest of two negro boys who, he says, entered his home and got $9 in money. The boys were not arrested yesterday.

—A pool player called "Tex," from Houston, Texas, who has been here for the past month, was defeated at a game of pocket billiards at the new Cape Fear billiard parlor by Mr. J. L. Malone last night; score 50 to 22. A large crowd witnessed the match, which is reported to have been the Texas man's first defeat in Wilmington.

—Through an error in the list of Sunday School excursions given out by Capt. W. F. Corbett, of the Tidewater Power Company, a few days ago, it was stated that Dr. W. C. Galloway was superintendent of the Mt. Lebanon Sunday School. Mr. Corbett says that the Sunday School in question has no superintendent and hence the statement was erroneous.

—James Mote, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mote, of this city, was picked up in Charlotte Thursday by the police and the father of the youngster notified of his presence in the Queen City. Mr. Mote sent the money Friday afternoon by wire and he was placed on the train, arriving in Wilmington early yesterday morning.

—Sheriff Cowan was called to Pocomoke fertilizer factory last night about 7 o'clock on account of an alleged attack which three negro women made on Andrew Hafner, colored, about 6 o'clock when one hit him in the head with a brick and another drew a pistol on him. Sheriff Cowan was accompanied on his trip by Deputy Sheriff Kelly and, although they spent more than two hours looking for the women in that vicinity, they were unable to find any trace of them.

—Tom Wright, colored, was run into by a horse on Nutt street yesterday afternoon and had his face bruised up and the lower part of one of his ears mashed off. He was driving a cart for Mr. H. L. Kidd's dairy, when a horse belonging to McNair & Pearsall ran away down the street and jumped into the cart. He was taken to the office of Dr. Bulluck, where he received the necessary surgical attention and was then carried to his home. The cart was badly damaged.

Before the Recorder.

In the absence of the Recorder yesterday Deputy Recorder George Harriss presided. George Nixon, colored, was charged with violating the prohibition law, but the evidence was flimsy and he was discharged. Prayer for judgment in a case against Ed Russ, white, charged with disorderly conduct, was continued upon payment of the costs.

LOW RECORDS IN COTTON

Renewal of Selling Movement at Opening of Market—Closed Steady at a Decline.

New York, March 7.—There was a renewal of yesterday's later selling movement at the opening of the cotton market today and all deliveries except March made new low records for the season. Closing prices were steady at a net decline of 1 to 7 points.

Cables were considered a shade better than due, but the local opening was barely steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points on all months except March which was 2 points higher. Leading spot interests sold March against purchases of May, and the spot month soon eased off with the rest of the list, which became weak and unsettled shortly after the call. Wall Street interests were heavy sellers while offerings became more general as prices worked lower. The fact that houses with Southern connections were among the sellers may have inspired apprehensions of an easier turn in the spot situation, and when the market broke below 11.60 for May contracts quite a good many stop loss orders were uncovered. Their execution sent active positions about nine points under Friday's closing figures, while later deliveries sold about 3 to 5 points net lower. Prices then steadied on covering and last quotations showed rallies of 2 to 3 points from the lowest. March increased its premium during the morning and closed about 53 points over May. Comparatively few private advices were received from the South. Reviews of the domestic goods market situation reported a quiet demand in primary circles with prices showing no material change for the week.

Spot cotton quiet; middling uplands 13.00; middling gulf 13.25; no sales. Futures closed steady.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REPORT

The Irregular Movements of Stocks Reflected the Unsettled State of Speculative Sentiment.

New York, March 7.—The irregular movements of stocks this week reflected the unsettled state of speculative sentiment. The storm obstructed the operations of the market and was a depressing influence on account of the loss in earnings which it caused.

The effect was heightened by other adverse influences, bearing especially upon railroad securities. Chesapeake & Ohio $33,000,000 note issue was made on terms which called into question the continued payment of dividends at the present rate. The great railroad systems reported decided poor earnings for January.

The charge of irregularity in St. Paul's accounts upset the market. Foreign selling was resumed on a large scale. The lack of poise betrayed at times was in contrast with the feeling of confidence at the opening of the year. While a generally hopeful view was expressed regarding the longer outlook, developments of the last few weeks indicated that the definite change for the better would not be as rapid and comprehensive as had been expected.

In spite of the conditions, steel trade authorities expressed confidence that railroads would perforce be free buyers of material in a short time and they relied upon this belief for early effective trade revival. Presinet forward buying of steel, however, has fallen off. The copper market also was soft.

The interior currency movement shifted away from New York and more gold was sent to France.

Government deposits with banks were drawn down. Railroads again resorted to short-term notes because of unsatisfactory bond market conditions. Foreign money market eased and financial strain at Paris relaxed.

DEATH IN WAYNE COUNTY.

Mrs. Avy Garris Andrews Passes Away.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Goldsboro, N. C., March 7.—One of Wayne county's best beloved women, Mrs. Avy Garris Andrews, widow of the late W. H. Andrews, of Stoney Creek township, died Thursday night at the home of her son, Mr. I. P. Andrews, near Salem church, with whom she had made her home since the death of her husband, many years ago. She was aged 84 years.

All who knew this good woman loved her. Her long life was a continual benediction in the community in which she lived and her death brings widespread sorrow, for she was indeed as a "Mother in Israel" to all who knew her. The funeral was held at Salem Methodist church Saturday afternoon and the interment made in the family burying place near the church beside her late husband.

STOCK MARKET UNSETTLED

Was Depressed at the Opening by Influence of the Sharp Decline in the London Market.

New York, March 7.—The stock market was unsettled today and prices covered an unusually wide range. At the opening the market was depressed by the influence of the sharp decline in the London market followed by active selling here for European accounts. St. Paul was the center of weakness, although it made a better showing today than during yesterday's decline. Its extreme loss today was three points and at the close half of this amount had been made up.

Trading was unusually active at the opening, over 200,000 shares being dealt in during the first hour. Prices gave way rapidly in all directions, losses in many cases running to a point or more.

The demand at the lower range was so vigorous that quotations were quickly lifted to a level over yesterday's close. Shortly before the end of the session, however, the list weakened once more, under the lead of Lehigh Valley which gave way three points.

The bank statement was the most unfavorable of recent weeks. Surplus fell off more than nine million and there was an actual loss of over four million.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales $1,765,000. United States 4s coupon advanced one-half and the 4s registered declined three-quarters on call on the week.

Total sales were 313,800 shares including American Tobacco, 300; A. C. L., 100; C. & O., 14,400; Lehigh Valley, 11,200; L. & N., 200; N. & W., 700; Reading, 48,500; S. A. L., 200; S. A. 45 ARE BOOKED NOW

Gattis' Tour to Cuba Will be Well Attended; More Expected.

Mr. Gattis, of the Gattis Tourist Agency, Raleigh, N. C., advises they have received bookings for forty-five people for the tour through Florida to Cuba, which leaves over the Seaboard Air Line Railway Tuesday afternoon, March 17th, though the time for leaving is eleven days off.

Many prominent names are among those booked, and Mr. Gattis expects the party to number seventy-five and the Seaboard is arranging to handle them by special train leaving Wilmington at 3:45 P. M. Tuesday, March 17th, consisting of the very latest equipment: a Seaboard steel dining car and Pullman drawing room, electric lighted sleeping cars.

A more interesting and instructive trip, at a reasonable cost, could not be desired and everything for the comfort and pleasure of the party has been arranged and Mr. Gattis will accompany them throughout the trip, looking after the details.

The trip consumes twelve days, with stops at Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Palm Beach, Miami, "across the sea-going railroad" extension of the "Flagler system," through the Keys to Key West, five days in Havana, where many attractive side trips will be taken.

The tickets returning are limited until April 6th and can be extended until April 11th, and those who desire can remain in Cuba or stop in Florida, returning within the final limit of ticket.

Those contemplating the trip should not delay writing the Gattis Tourist Agency for their accommodations. (advertisement.)

Corns Go, Sure Pop, If You Use "Gets-It"

Simple As A B C. It's the New Way of Curing Corns and Calluses.

If you have corns now, the chances are you have never used "GETS-IT," the biggest seller among corn cures ever known. It is the new way, does away with all trouble, pain and fussing in treating corns. Thousands who have puttered with old corns for years, have gotten rid of them right off, with a few drops of "GETS-IT," applied as quick as you can spell your name. Corns just love to be cut, picked, filed, gouged and pulled. Quit it. You've tried cotton rings that cause shooting corn pains, greasy salves that spread over the toe and make it raw and tape that sticks to the stocking—now try "GETS-IT." It has none of the drawbacks of the old style corn cures, eases pain and never fails on any corn or callus. "GETS-IT" is sold by all druggists, 25c a bottle, or sent direct, by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Republican Attacks on Democrats

The following verses are taken from a piece of doggerell written by Iredell Meares, Esq., defeated Progressive (Republican) candidate for Governor, printed in the Independent News for political purposes. The Independent News is the political organ of the Independent Club, among whose officers and leaders are Thomas E. Wallace, ex-Republican Postmaster, William Struthers, Jr., Republican member of the Board of Election; Louis Goodman, Republican candidate for County Solicitor, all of whom are supporting Woodus Kellum for the House of Representatives and Brooke G. Empie, for Recorder.

Could the attack below on the Ministers of the Gospel, Martin S. Willard, Democratic chairman of the Board of Commissioners; P. Q. Moore, Democratic Mayor of the City of Wilmington; W. P. Stacy, Democratic candidate for the Legislature, and John J. Furlong, Democratic candidate for Recorder, who declares that he wants no Republican votes, be promulgated by anybody except Republicans of the old regime? Will Democrats follow Mr. Meares and his Republican associates, or will they vote the straight Democratic ticket?

D. J. FERGUS.

WHO WILL THE WINNER BE?

By a Looker-on in Vienna.

Dedicated to S. A. Mathews, the poet laureate of the Democratic Club, with apologies to the Ministerial Union and Good Order League.

(Note—This is a poem. The fact is stated lest it be not perceived.)

I

"WHO IS THE MAN THAT FILLS THE BILL?
"IT'S STACY."
And whose the will of the bill he will fill?
'Tis Furlong's.
And with all his brain and might and main,
He stands no higher on a level plain
Than Furlong.

II

"WHO IS THE MAN SAYS THE PEOPLE SHALL RULE?
"IT'S STACY."
An original thought, he never wrought;
Plays it in fancy, attuned to Aunt Nancy,
While trimmed and chiseled and used as a tool
For declaiming and whooping to eloquent rule,
The pious, political, predatory scherie
Of preachers, Furlong and county machine.

III

"WHO IS THE FRIEND OF THE LABORING MAN?
"IT'S STACY."
Provided he can, with help of the clans,
Exploit him and vote him, with purpose to tote
Willard and Nesbitt and Moore of the goats
On the laborer's shoulders in sanitary cans.

IV.

WHO IS THE MAN WHO IS GOING TO WIN?
NOT STACY.
For the people, with observant ken,
Behind his gun, behold the men!
See the preacher to politician turned,
See the politician to priestcraft burned,
Incense offering to Democracee
In the cant and chant of Phatisee.
Fine! Fine! we say, is this young Demosthene!
Alack-a-day, that he should be in such bad companee!

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

Fell to New Low Level for Season During Past Week.

New Orleans, March 7.—Cotton fell to ne wlow levels for the season this week under selling inspired by the larger movement and talk regarding ginning, the Mexican situation and unsettled conditions in the stock markets. The net results was a net loss of 16 to 27 points.

The high prices of the week were on Monday and the low prices on Saturday. At the highest the trading months were one point up to two points down, compared with the close of last week; at the lowest they were 21 to 34 points down. The range was 21 to 32 points.

The main sustaining influences were the large exports, a somewhat better inquiry for spots in the South and a disposition to regard consumption as being on a record-breaking basis. The bull side, however, was apathetic and this apathy was a great help to the bears.

Much liquidation came from nervous longs, especially after dispatches from Washington told of a new investigation of cotton future trading being contemplated.

In the spot demand, prices lost one-quarter of a cent middling closing at 12 3-4 against 13 last week and 12 1-2 cents this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 9,840 bales against 5,484 last week and 1,554 this week last year, sales to arrive amounted to 2,075 bales against 2,297 last week and 2,059 this week last year.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES.

Mr. W. D. Thomas Dies of Injuries Received by Explosion.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Rocky Mount, N. C., March 7.—After a lingering illness of five weeks, following burns and injuries sustained when a locomotive at the Jenkins-Daughtry Machine Works exploded, Mr. W. D. Thomas died at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Rocky Mount Sanitarium, where he had been for treatment since the accident.

Mr. Thomas, who was a machinist, was not thought to be seriously hurt at the time, and it was not until complications set in, and owing to advanced years, his system failed to respond to proper treatment and he gradually grew worse until the end came. The deceased suffered injury on February 4th, when, with other employes of the machine shop, they were making final tests of a tramway locomotive when the dome to the boiler blew off, severely burning Mr. Thomas and slightly injuring Mr. Daughtry.

CRAWFORD WILL VALID.

Decision Handed Down in Famous Case—Widow Gets Estate.

Atlanta, March 7.—The will of the late Joshua B. Crawford, of Atlanta, leaving his entire estate, worth approximately $150,000, to his widow, Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, is valid, according to the report today handed down here by James L. Anderson, special auditor in the famous case. Mr. Anderson was appointed by the court to investigate charges filed by a number of persons claiming to be "heirs at law" to the estate, that Mrs. Crawford exercised undue influence over her aged husband's business before and after marriage. In his report Mr. Anderson declares that Mr. Crawford was of sound mind when he married, and that there was no evidence that Mrs. Crawford fraudulently induced him to wed her. In the event that the special auditor's report is received by the court, the case will be finally closed.

FOR LYERLY MURDER.

Another Negro Arrested in Rowan County.

Charlotte, N. C., March 7.—The fourth arrest in connection with the murder of L. Preston Lyerly at Barber's Junction February 24th, was made at Salisbury tonight when officers took into custody Will Fitts, a negro, implicated in Sid Finger's alleged confession. Will irkpatrick, who is said to have been charged by Finger with having fired the shot which killed Lyerly, according to officers, was turning an ice cream freezer at the home of a Rowan county deputy sheriff, 18 miles from Barber's Junction at the time of the murder.

Officers stated today that Finger's past trail is largely written in blood, that he killed a white man at Roaring Gap, Tennessee, four years ago, and a negro in Catawba county, this State, two years ago, serving short sentences in the penitentiaries of both States.

BATTLESHIP ORDERED BACK TO PORT AU PRINCE.

Fear Renewal of Revolutionary Movement in Haiti Government.

Washington, March 7.—Orders to the battleship South Carolina, now at Guantanamo, Cuba, to proceed immediately to Port Au Prince, gave rise today to fear that fresh revolutionary disturbances had occurred in Haiti.

The South Carolina had just reached Guantanamo from Port Au Prince when she was ordered to return. It was explained, however, that the orders were simply precautionary and that the State Department had decided it would be unwise, in view of the newness of the present Seamor government to leave the Haitien capital without an American warship. The Nashville, now at Port Au Prince, has been ordered to Guantanamo for supplies.

UNIFORM CONTRACT SYSTEM.

Adopted by Virginia Canners' Association After Long Debate.

Roanoke, Va., March 7.—The "uniform contract" system was adopted this afternoon by the Virginia Canners' Association after a long and stormy debate. It is designed to protect the members of the association against buyers who show inclination to be unfair in the acceptance of goods. Copies of the contract will be sent to every canner in Virginia.

The convention adjourned this afternoon, after naming Fredericksburg, Va., as the next place of meeting and re-electing the following officers:

F. D. Bolton, president, New Castle; J. W. Huddleston, vice president; W. C. Smiley, secretary and treasurer.

—Maj. H. W. Stickle, United States engineer in charge of this district, will leave tonight for Tarboro to hold a hearing there tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock regarding the location of a new bridge on Tar river near that place. He will be accompanied by Mr. Chas. E. Berry.

Paris, March 7.—Madeline, the "Siamese twin," who was separated on Wednesday from her sister, Susanne, by a delicate surgical operation, died today of convulsions. Susanne is recovering rapidly from the operation and physicians say there is every prospect of her living.

Buckhead, Ga., March 7.—Walter Shivers, chief of police here, was shot and killed tonight by Forest Adams, a prominent citizen. The shooting occurred in a local store about 9 o'clock. The cause of the trouble is not yet known.

MEETING OF TEACHERS.

Regular Monthly Session Held Yesterday Morning at Hemenway.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Hanover Teachers' Association was held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the Hemenway School building. All the districts in the county except one were represented. Prof. Washington Catlett, the president, presided, and a record of the proceedings was kept by the secretary, Miss Julia Cameron.

Dr. John Thames, assistant county health officer, made a most interesting and instructive address on hygiene. He announced that Dr. C. W. Stiles and his excellent corps of workers, who have been working so faithfully in the city schools making examinations of pupils since last October, would begin making examinations of rural school children of the county April 1st. He distributed blanks to the teachers which are to be filled out by them and returned to Dr. Stiles.

Mrs. H. E. Fennell, of the city graded schools, read an address which she made before the State Grammar School Association at its last meeting in Raleigh. This was along practical lines and was most helpful to the teachers.

A positive force feed machine, designed to spread fertilizer in an open drill and cover it.

The fertilizer is discharged on an adjustable scoop-shaped casting that spreads the fertilizer in a broad band, six inches or more wide. The hopper is made of galvanized steel, and holds one bushel, or about 65 pounds of fertilizer.

The agitator in the hopper insures the filling of the conveyor with all conditions of fertilizer, and will handle cotton seed meal to perfection.

With the usual mixture of cotton seed meal, acid and kainit, its capacity is 3 1-2 foot rows, 200 to 1,000 pounds per acre, (more per acre on narrower, and less on wider rows). It is easily regulated, and when gears are set for quantity wanted the feed never changes; not affected by the speed of the horse; up or down hill the same; is well made; light draft; does absolutely perfect work. Its success is attested to by representative farmers throughout the entire cotton belt; weighs about ninety pounds.

SUPERIOR QUALITY OF LONG-STAPLE COTTON

Can be Grown in the South—Former Dangers Removed—Manufacturers Must Discriminate in Buying and Give the Farmer More Direct Interest in Superior Grades.

Washington, March 7.—Long-staple cotton of superior quality can be grown to advantage in many parts of our cotton belt if the farmer can be given a more direct interest in preserving the purity and uniformity of his crop. This interest will come only as a result of greater discrimination in buying on the part of manufacturers. Buyers must cease taking inferior mixed fiber and paying as much for it as for the best and most uniform, if they really wish to encourage the production of long-staple cottons in America. These facts are brought out in the Department of Agriculture's new bulletin, "The Relation of Cotton Buying to Cotton Growing."

Formerly manufacturers have complained that the supply of long-staple cotton was inadequate and uncertain, says the bulletin. The boll weevil was supposed to have made it almost impossible to grow long-staple varieties, but this danger has been overcome. New early maturing varieties of long-staple cotton have been developed. Improved methods of culture have made it possible to produce good crops of this cotton in many parts of the United States, despite the presence of the boll weevil. Natural conditions favor its production, and almost unlimited supplies may be grown if the farmers will only be encouraged to take more care in maintaining their cotton at a high standard.

Inspection of the cotton in the field affords a much better basis of judgment regarding the essential quality of uniformity than the present method of pulling samples from the bales. Field inspection should precede warehouse grading, especially with long-staple cottons. Familiarity with a variety of cotton makes it possible to recognize much smaller percentages of admixture or degeneration than can be detected in the bale, thus affording a greater degree of protection to the buyer and manufacturer and at the same time offering a greater inducement to the farmer to maintain the purity and uniformity of his cotton.

It rests largely with the commercial world of manufacturers and buyers to determine what kind of fiber the farmer shall produce today. Many districts of the cotton belt, and the newly-settled irrigated regions of the Southwest are ready and adapted for the long-staple variety if the market price warrants its production.

The presence of the boll weevil is now an additional reason for growing long-staple instead of short-staple cotten. The extra care and precautions that are required to protect the cotton against the weevil make it possible to produce a better staple. Thus the growing of long-staple cotton, to sell at a higher price, may be considered as a means of securing a return for the increased cost of production of the diminished yield that may be caused by the boll weevil.

That the present system of buying is seriously defective is now widely recognized, and radical reforms are being sought through legislation and otherwise. But it is highly desirable that reforms in the commercial world be considered in their relation to the improvement of the quality of the crop and not merely to secure higher prices for inferior cotton. There is no prospect that such prices can be maintained by any action that may be taken in the United States. The only secure basis for our cotton industry is in the improvement of the product. Otherwise, we remain exposed to the danger of foreign competition. It is much more important to improve the quality of our cotton crop than to secure high prices without such improvement, since high prices for inferior cotton will only stimulate the rapidly-increasing production of low-grade cotton in other parts of the world.

Commercial Causes of Deterioration of Cotton.

The manufacturing world, in Europe as well as in the United States, seems to be unanimous in the opinion that the cotton crop has deteriorated in recent decades. The same complaint is made regarding all of the principal types of cotton: Upland short staples, long staples, Egyptian and sea island. While direct evidence on the fact of deterioration is not easy to obtain, there is circumstantial support for the idea that deterioration has taken place, for the system of buying has allowed changes that would naturally tend toward a decline in the quality of the crop. The necessary precautions of selection and for avoiding admixture of seed have been relaxed, and even planting of inferior varieties has been encouraged.

The general disregard of the essential qualities of length, strength, and higher grade on the part of buy-

JACKSON'S WORK IN FLORIDA

Freed the State From the Blight of Indian Barbarism—Veterans' Reunion.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 7.—Confederate soldiers, the world over, revere the name of Andrew Jackson, and in view of the fact that their next reunion is to be held in the only city in the South that was named in honor of that great and brave man, his services in freeing Florida from the blight of Indian barbarism will be of interest.

Jacksonville was named for General Andrew Jackson as a compliment and mark of appreciation, for services he rendered to civilization in the Seminole War. There could have been no progress or civilization in Florida but for the work of Andrew Jackson. Conditions in this territory in 1818, nearly 100 years ago, demanded the services of a brave and resolute man. General Jackson was selected by the government as the one man above all others to head the movement against the Seminole Indians, who had been terrorizing the territory for several years and committing atrocities of the most brutal character.

In March, 1818, General Jackson was ordered to the site of the Seminole War. He invaded East Florida, and in a campaign of less than six weeks crushed these Indians. It is related by historians that in one village, not far removed from Jacksonville, he found 300 scalps of men, women and children, many of them still fresh, hanging on a war pole. General Jackson knew that the Spaniards were in sympathy with the Indians in their attacks on American settlers. After cleaning up a number of Indian villages he captured the Spanish post of St. Marks. For this act he was severely censured by his government. However, the naked fact is that "Old Hickory" was more courageous than the men who were conducting the affairs of State at Washington.

Early in May, 1818, General Jackson closed his campaign against the Seminoles in East Florida. He had completely broken their power and run them out of the territory. They caused no more serious trouble.

During his campaign in East Florida, General Jackson obtained satisfactory evidence that Spanish officers at Pensacola were in sympathy with the Indians. He promptly decided to march against them and teach them a lesson. The Spanish Governor of West Florida learning of General Jackson's purpose, sent him a written protest against his invasion. This protest is now on file among the Jackson documents in charge of the Tennessee Historical Society at Nashville. The protest was delivered to General Jackson near Pensacola on May 23rd, but it had no effect on that determined man. In reply, he sent a peremptory demand for the immediate surrender of Pensacola and Barrancas. Jackson advanced immediately on Pansacola and possessed it. Two days later the Barrancas garrison capitulated, were received as prisoners of war and sent to Havana.

Having thus snatched both East and West Florida from the Indians and Spaniards, General Jackson at once proceeded to establish a provisional government under the stars and stripes. Having accomplished this he returned to Tennessee, then his home.

Without censuring General Jackson, the government restored Pensacola and St. Marks to Spain, and the Spaniards were put in possession. Shortly thereafter, however, Florida was ceded to the United States and General Jackson was made provisional Governor. He served a little more than a year, and was succeeded upon the establishment of a territorial government, by Wm. P. Duval as Governor.

In 1822, a number of pioneers held a meeting here and decided to start the work of building a town. The vil-

SKETCH OF HIS UNIQUE CHARACTER AND CAREER

Joseph Fels, Philanthropist, Whose Recent Death in Philadelphia is Mourned the World Over—Had Planned to Visit North Carolina This Month.

(The State Journal.)

Joseph Fels, who died in Philadelphia last Sunday, was one of the most remarkable and most useful men the world has ever known. Becoming convinced that our system of taxation was fundamentally wrong and the cause of much injustice and suffering, he gave his mind and body and great fortune to the proper solution of that vexed question. He was a firm believer in that system of taxation which Henry George made famous and was its greatest living apostle. His death at this time is the cause of peculiar regret to many North Carolinians, as he had planned to visit this State in March, and would probably have made addresses at Raleigh, Wake Forest, the State University and possibly other points. The following interesting story of his career is taken from the Philadelphia North American of Tuesday, the 23rd:

Joseph Fels, world leader of the single taxers, who expended without stint wealth earned from the manufacture of soap to establish the philosophy of Henry George in nearly all civilized countries of the globe, died early yesterday of pneumonia at the home of his most intimate friend in America, Earl Barnes, of 3640 Chestnut street.

Mr. Fels was stricken with a severe cold last Monday and was confined to the house. Pneumonia developed quickly, and the great single-taxer grew steadily worse, until Saturday night at 10 o'clock, when he seemed to take a turn for the better.

A few hours later, however, he suffered a relapse, and died at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

Gathered at his bedside when death closed the career of one of the most noted Americans of the present day were his wife, his brother, Samuel S. Fels, who was associated with him in the soap manufacturing business, and three sisters, the Misses Rosena and Barbara Fels, of this city, and Mrs. G. Rosenthal, of North Carolina.

Mr. Fels was one of a small group of Americans, in which can be included Theodore Roosevelt, William Jennings Bryan and a few others, whose deeds, marvelous energy and personality are felt in every corner of the world. He loomed large as a world figure, and thousands felt the warm, vital force of his influence.

Thousands who had never seen him felt as though they knew him intimately and looked to him to lead them out of the stress of the economic struggle.

His Tremendous Influence.

Mr. Fels' tremendous influence was felt in England, when his preaching of the doctrines of the single tax resulted in an amendment to the Eng-

"Roy O' The Bogs"

A big three-reel Victor Irish romance on the 18th century. Mr. J. Warren Kerrigan is seen in the leading role, supported by such stars as Wm. Worthington, Edith Bostwick and others. This Irish romance will undoubtedly create a sensation. It concerns an avaricious old uncle who steals for his own son the inheritance of his nephew (Kerrigan) and the conscience which is aroused by the ringing of a death knell. You will undoubtedly like this big three-reel production. We know you will.

"SOME NERVE."

The usual whole-souled nonsensical comedy offering, with the addition of a pretty girl and a good character part. Ford Sterling is seen in his highly emotional comedy role, and will bring many a laugh. One of the best.

TUESDAY

"The Runaway Princess"

Another big three-reel offering on top of Monday's big bill. The story deals with a refined and dainty young princess, who has never worried about love or sweethearts, and the shock of her uncle's announcement that she was to marry Prince Wilhelm, and her subsequent runaway to avoid the union. Many and exciting are the incidents in the stupendous production, and it will be a hit—we're sure of it.

"MR. AND MRS. INNOCENCE ABROAD."

An extremely pleasing scenic number featuring King Baggot and Leah Baird in their travels in London and Paris. Cliffs of Dover, views of Calais, Eiffel Tower, are some of the sights shown. A fine scenic picture with a light and pleasing story attached. King Baggott and Leah Baird appearing in this picture insures a doubly good one. You all know what to expect.

The usual Southern setting, the war scenes come on. The black sheep is a spy and his brother is suspected, but Jim confesses and kills himself. This production is wonderfully written and staged, and will hold the interest throughout. The close is one of the strongest logical climaxes ever a story closed with. A headliner.

FRIDAY

"Our Mutual Girl"

Here she comes! "Our Mutual Girl" will arrive in Wilmington next Friday morning, and will charm and delight crowded Bijou houses all day long. Miss Norma Phillips, who plays the title role, is one of the most charming little actresses ever on the photoplay stage, and she was selected above all others for this series of big fashion stories. "Our Mutual Girl" meets some of the biggest people in the world, talks with them, eats with them, and she wears some of the most wonderful gowns ever seen anywhere, and captivates and charms everyone she meets. Don't fail to see "Our Mutual Girl" FRIDAY.

"THE SERPENT IN EDEN."

A two-reel drama of love, romance and sacrifice, hand-colored by an expert artist. The artist deserts the girl who saved him from starving, and the story tells of the wife's sacrifice and the final degeneration of the artist. Very strong dramatic treat.

"ROMANCE AND DUTY."

A big two-reel stroy of love and romance; one that will appeal to everyone, resembling the "Prisoner of Zenda" in plot.

SATURDAY

"Eileen Of Erin"

A big two-reel picture laid in a little Irish settlement. Dennis Morrissey is chosen leader of the Patriots, and his mother tells his fortune by a tea cup. A typical Irish story, with the unique setting that will make it appeal to everyone. This story is one of the truest to life, cleanest and most charming that you have ever seen along this line.

"THE CHAMPIONS."

A first rate horse-racing number, in which Mabel Normand plays the part of the driver, after her lover has been bound and hidden away by the villain. Both the story and the setting are exceptionally interesting.

"FOR LOVE AND ART."

A bunch of vaudevillians are treated to a shower of bad eggs and vegetables. Very ludicrous and laughable.

With the Man in The Street

Jack is Dead—Yes, Jack is dead, and somehow the "shop" doesn't seem quite the same. There is the feeling that something is gone, something that was an essential part of the life of the little group of men who labor while others sleep, and take their leisure in the care-free comradeship of the still hours of the early morning when the paper has gone to press—and it's something that can't be replaced.

For Jack was the Star's mascot, and than him no braver, truer fox terrier ever lived. In reality, he belonged to Mr. W. S. Bernard, business manager of the paper, but in spirit he belonged to every man on the staff, and every man on the staff was his friend. For ten years or more he lived in the shop, night and day, and then, when his master moved out to Winter Park, Jack went along, but he continued to divide his time between the two places. Scarcely a day passed but what he trotted into the office and loafed awhile. A box in a comfortable nook provided him a resting place, and as each man came in to begin his day's work, Jack's kindly old face, the muzzle gray with advancing years, but the eyes as bright as ever, would peep out over the edge, and his cropped tail would wag a doggish greeting. But now—well, they miss that friendly welcome.

In his affections Jack probably made no choice between his master and Mr. J. E. Thompson, general manager of the company. His love for these two men was a beautiful thing, the blind, all-absorbing, unquestioning love of the dumb animal. And he was always happiest when they were both near him.

Jack was a born fighter, and in all his 16 years he was never known to show the white feather. Pugnacity was an essential part of his make-up, and it cropped out whenever other dogs were around. And it made no difference to Jack whether they were larger or smaller than himself. His code knew no distinctions, and to him the survival of the fittest was an iron-clad creed. And to his credit, it may be stated that he was seldom vanquished in battle, for his courage and grim determination overcame any handicap of size and weight.

But it brought about his undoing at last. Scarred and maimed from many a fight, and physically weak from increasing years, he met a larger and a stronger dog on one of his nocturnal trips several weeks ago, and when he came home the next morning his throat was terribly torn and mangled.

Every attention was given him, and nothing that veterinary skill could do to heal his wounds was overlooked. And the wounds did heal, but blood poison set in, and he grew steadily weaker till finally the wings of the Black Angel brushed him, and the bright old eyes closed to open no more.

And out under the pines at Winter Park his closest friends dug a little grave and here they reverently laid his body, where the soft south wind will sing an eternal requiem through the branches overhead.

"Thirty" is in for Jack Bernard.

That Rib Again—Now comes Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, leader of the woman suffrage movement and propounder of theories on "The Larger Feminism," and declares to an audience of modern daughters of Eve at the Hotel Astor, that the Bible, with its "man-made myth of Adam's rib," is all wrong; that science has recently demonstrated that woman was the original human organism, and the male but a later and insignificant offshoot. She further asserts that since his accidental emergance as an individual entity, man has progressed and developed very little, while woman, economically and socially subjugated, has developed and improved enormously in functions, and is easily the higher form from the physiological standpoint.

Mankind, thy name is insect.

The Young Lady From Atlanta—The little group in the parlor was enjoying a restful after-dinner half-hour the other day, when the silence was broken by the Young Lady From Atlanta, who had been glancing over The Star and a Richmond paper. She remarked, quite suddenly and apropos of nothing, that the Wilmington and Richmond papers were about as near sorry imitations of real newspapers as anything she remembered having seen. She didn't say it in just those words, but that is what she meant.

"So?" queried The Man in The Street, who was "among those present," and he desired to know wherein their faults lay.

The Young Lady From Atlanta replied that they never printed anything interesting. On second thought, she believed she had read one or two items from Atlanta recently, but that was about the only worthwhile news she remembered having seen in either of the journals referred to. She frankly admitted that she seldom read anything in either of the papers unless it had big headlines over it, but when cross-examined as to a local story in The Star printed under a three-column head recently she did not remember what it was about.

The trouble with The Star and the Richmond paper, as the young lady saw, it was that they did not print a lot of Atlanta society news, a la "Polly Peachtree." We can imagine the vast content with which the average citizen of Wilmington would devour several columns in his home paper chronicling the doings of the Atlanta society folk.

But the Young Lady From Atlanta is a very charming little lady withal, and quite young. As such she is readily forgiven the lack of a riper judgment, a kindlier sympathy and a wider charity which will come in her more mature years.

Too Comfortable—"I was too comfortable last night to sleep," said a gentleman Tuesday morning. "Sunday night I like to have frozen, and stayed awake half the night on account of cold feet," he continued. "I was careful, however, to see that there was plenty of cover last night, and I rested so pleasantly that I couldn't sleep. Strange world, isn't it? We spend half our days trying to get to a point where we can enjoy life, and after we have gotten what we think will bring happiness, we find that we aren't happy at all."

About that time he suddenly remembered that he had an engagement at 9 o'clock and turned to leave. The remainder of that day he devoted to business which meant hard work. Comfortable? Well, hardly, but he wasn't thinking about comfort then. He was thinking of getting the thing he had in mind done, and not about comfort. Happy? Yes, he is never quite so happy as when he is getting things done. And, after all, that is the true secret of happiness, and of rest as well.

The So-Called Religions—The other night a man in Wilmington went to church. He heard a splendid sermon, full of sound truth, the bulk of which was devoted to what the minister was pleased to call the so-called religions of earth. Of course, he held up the Christian religion as being the one true religion, which was in accordance with the views of the gentleman in question. However, he demurred to the designation of the other religious as so-called religions, for, to his mind, they are as real to those who believe in them as is the Christian religion to those who profess faith in it.

And somewhere in a book he had read, and on the platform he had heard returned missionaries explain how faithful the so-called heathen are to their religious faith, and then he wondered how anyone could speak of them as so-called religions.

If the great historical religions which millions upon millions of men, as rational as any American citizen, have professed through the ages, are simply systems of error and delusions, thought he, that only the blind deceitfulness of the human mind could tempt men to believe, then how dare a man use either his reason or conscience, which has been so discredited, either to believe or to justify the faith of his own?

Now this man rather sees in the great religions of earth, whether they be Christian or non-Christian man's quest after God, and God's quest after man.

Religion of whatever kind is an inseparable part of the human race, and fills a void in the human heart that cannot be filled otherwise.

Holding to this view, he could not subscribe to the minister's teaching that the non-Christian religions are so-called religions, but he thinks and believes that they are real religions to those men who believe in them, whether they be true or not.

A Case of Glass House — "Look here," hailed the Observant Resident, a few days ago, "I suppose you have heard that old saying about people living in glass houses and throwing stones."

The Man in the Street admitted that he had.

"You might well apply it to yourself, then," said the Observant Resident.

"I noticed a few weeks ago you handed Lumberton something of a roast on account of a lack of proper hotel facilities. Did you ever stop to think that Lumberton probably has as good hotel accommodations as Wilmington, when you take into consideration the size of the two places, and their relative importance to the traveling public. At present, we have only one hotel here that can be called first-class. A little later we will have another one. But now and then the accommodations are and will be totally insufficient to the city's needs. Look at Charlotte, Raleigh, Greensboro, Asheville, or any of the other Southern cities of the same size and importance as Wilmington. You will find that they each have from four to six or more good hotels. And when you stop to think about it, there's no real reason why they should be called upon to entertain any more visitors in the course of a year than is Wilmington.

"Why, I'll tell you the need for enlarged hotel facilities of the first class here is absolute. We should have increased accommodations to enable us to entertain high class trade and prominent business men and tourists who would visit here and stop here, if they could do so comfortably. Our present hotel facilities are taxed to their utmost to take care of the every-day demand of the commercial traveling public. What in the world are we to do, if a real big convention should decide to visit Wilmington during the Winter, when Wrightsville Beach is not open?"

The Man in the Street was forced to confess that he did not know.

SUPERIOR QUALITY OF LONG STAPLE

ers has had the natural effect of leading the farmers to believe that the most desirable character a cotton variety can have is that of giving a high percentage of lint, "a large outturn at the gin." This erroneous idea is now firmly fixed in the popular mind, and is not likely to be eradicated while the present system of buying continues. No matter how inferior in other respects a variety may be, thousands of bushels of seed can be sold by advertising a high percentage of lint.

The fact that some of the varieties with highest lint percentages produce extremely short, inferior fiber does not interfere with the planting of such varieties as long as the farmer can sell three-quarter-inch cotton for as much as inch cotton or even inch-and-an-eighth cotton. The popularity of these short-linted varieties is a result of the present system of buying. In former decades, when the quality of the fiber was considered, nobody would have thought of growing such cotton or of breeding such varieties. In addition to their inferior lint, the high percentage varieties usually have smaller seeds and weaker seedlings, a very undesirable character from the agricultural standpoint. It is easier to secure higher percentages by selecting variations toward small seeds than to increase the amount of lint on the seeds.

Manufacturers have assumed or have been led to suppose that the dangers threatening the cotton industry were purely agricultural, such as the exhaustion of the soil, change of climate, or attacks of the boll weevil, and this makes it harder for them to understand that the primary causes of deterioration in the quality of the fiber have been commercial rather than agricultural. This does not mean, of course, that there are not many other agricultural improvements that need to be made, but it does mean that the manufacturer should take greater care to see that the farmer has the necessary inducement to plant superior varieties and to adopt the more careful methods that are necessary to produce better fiber.

ANAEMIC SINCE CHILDHOOD.

How Miss Holmes Regained Her Health.

If you are anaemic, you need more iron in your blood, and the tell-tale symptoms are a pale face—colorless lips, ashen finger nails, poor circulation, and short breath, and more serious diseases are easily contracted when in this condition.

What Vinol did for Miss Yvonne Holmes, of Fall River, Mass., it will do for every anaemic run-down person. She says: "I have been weak and anaemic since childhood, always had 'that tired feeling.' Tonic after tonic was tried with little or no result until Vinol was recommended, and after taking three bottles my appetite and digestion have been improved. I do not suffer any more from insomnia, nor do I have distressing headaches as formerly, and I am stronger than I have been for years."

We ask every anaemic or run-down, weak person in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not do all we claim. Rob't R. Bellamy, Druggist, Wilmington, N. C.

Two-thirds of the people of Wilmington live on moderate incomes, and yet, for some reason, the Sheriff of the county receives a salary of $3,500.00 with all clerk hire paid. All Clogged Up? Here's Quick Relief

A Simple Remedy to Correct Constipation Before It Becomes Chronic.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a specific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest endorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mr. H. W. Penstermaker, Siegfried, Pa. He says he has had wonderful results from the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, that, in fact, he has never found a remedy so good, and he is glad to recommend it. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant-tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

WHICH OF THE TWO MAJOR LEAGUES HAS THE BIGGEST AND BEST OUTFIELD TALENT?

The Author Starts Out to Prove That the American League Far Outshines the Older Organization in Outer Garden Talent—Lining Them All Up.

(J. C. Kofoed in "Baseball Magazine")

Out against the blue vault of the sky a tiny speck of white is soaring. Down on the green sod a man is racing, his spiked shoes drumming a tattoo on the springy turf. As he runs he twists his neck to glance slantwise across his shoulder. The ball is falling rapidly in a sharp tangent that apparently will bring it to earth far in front of him. Gritting his teeth he speeds on, spurring himself to the impossible. As the shouts of the frenzied fans beat down on him he flings himself forward in a reckless dive. The sphere strikes his clutching leather fingers—sticks there, and the player is a hero until another man performs a feat equally as remarkable.

There is no need to tag the man mentioned with a name. He is a big league outfielder, and, if anyone should ask you, the outfielders in fast company travel at a rather lively clip. So any mention of a man who is weak in the finer points of the game will be understood to be in a comparative sense only. No man ever succeeded in winning a place on any of the 16 teams in the big show unless he showed marked baseball ability.

In a previous article the writer endeavored to show how closely the rival infielders of the National and American Leagues were linked in ability. There is no such narrow room for choice among the gardeners. The American Leaguers are so far ahead of their contemporaries in the greatest asset of an outfielder—offensive strength—that there is scarcely any basis for argument. Great as are Cobb, Strunk and Speaker in fielding, Paskert, Jack Murray and Leach are, at least, their equals.

But the art of catching a fly ball, however difficult it may be, is the least of the outfielder's duty. He must be a good hitter, fast on his feet, a lightning thinker, and a possessor of a Harveyized steel whip. The American Leaguers have brought these qualities to a higher point of development than the men of the National League. There would be little to choose between them if fielding was the only point taken into consideration. There is little, if any, margin of difference in their ability in catching flies, playing ground balls and throwing.

Then what makes the younger league players so much the stronger? For every critic has conceded the fact that they are of far more intrinsic value to their teams. It is simply their great offensive strength—viz: batting and base running.

Milan, Speaker, Cobb, Moeller, Shotten, Oldring and Strunk are the speed merchants of the younger circuit. Max Carey, of the Pirates, is the best base runner in the National League, and Marsans, Bescher, Burns, and Murray are his closest rivals. Yet, when it comes to worrying the catchers, good as they undoubtedly are, the runners of the parent organization do not class with their younger rivals.

There are only two teams on the circuit that have outfielders fast enough to be termed "terrors" on the sacks, and now that Bescher has gone to New York, it cuts down the strength of the Cincinnati Reds. Though Marsans and Bates are good on the sacks, Bob was the heart and life of the trio. His passing to New York has given the Giants the greatest strength they have ever had there. Murray is a reckless daredevil on the bases, Burns is wonderfully fast, and Bescher is the best in the National League.

That about lets the older circuit out. The Phillies, Braves, Superbas, Cardinals and Cubs are not famed for their thieving ability. Pittsburg with the single exception of Max Carey, is only fair. So New York is the only club in the National League possessing an outfield that is strong as a unit in base stealing.

Senators Best Stealers.

The palm must unhesitatingly go to Washington as the best in the American circuit. Milan and Moeller's forte is speed, and Howard Shanks is no snail himself. Together they stole more bases than the outfields of the Phillies, Boston Braves and Cardinals combined. Weakness behind American League bats cannot be argued as the post-season series conclusively showed.

New York and Chicago are the only teams that show poor base running ability and their weakness is more than overbalanced by the strength of their compatriots. In Tigerville Cobb and Veach make up for Crawford's heaviness of foot. All of the Athletics are remarkably fast men, and if Connie Mack's offensive ideas were like those of McGraw there is no doubt that Oldring, Strunck and Murphy would be foremost among the purloiners. Boston has the great Speaker, a wonderfully brainy base stealer, ably abetted by Hooper and Lewis. Though neither Cleveland nor St. Louis are very strong in this department, they do not display the leaden-footedness that is apparent in some National League cities.

But after all, speed is only one asset of offensive play. Batting is far and away more important, and in this line of baseballic endeavor the difference between the two leagues is even more apparent. There are eight Americans in the select "three hundred" circle, while but four gardeners (two of them substitutes) appear in the ranks of the senior circuit. Clifford Cravath, Sherwood Magee, Beals Becker, and Roy Miller, all of Philadelphia, are the honor men. Though slugging is their long suit, slowness detracts considerably from their all-around value.

Great as is Cravath, the hardest hitting outfielder on the circuit, Cobb, Speaker and Jackson all top him in the averages. Many are better fielders and few worse base runners. The writer is making no attempt to detract from Cactus' remarkable ability, for no one more admires his slugging powers than I do. As Charles Van Loan said of a character in one of his stories, "When he got his old black bat in his hand and a worried pitcher in front of him he was working at his trade." That is Cravath's trade, too, but there are better workmen than he, and they are in the American League.

Name over with me the slugging outfielders—men who hold a regular berth, understand—in the National League. Cravath and Magee, certainly. Marsans, Wheat, Leach, Schulte, Carey and Bates—hard hitters they are, but only the first two, big muscled "Gavvy" and quick-tempered Magee, hit .300.

Now look at the American League. It holds the names of the greatest sluggers in the game today—Cobb, Jackson, Crawford, Speaker. Their drives go like rifle bullets, every whit as fast as those of the National Leaguers, and they go many times farther!

Whew! It is the life of the big game. You may roar yourself hoarse over an astounding bit of fielding, but the solid smash of wood against leather is what brings you to your feet, the very shriek of joy choked in your throat. Hitting! Why, if it comes to that, it is hard hitting that makes the great plays possible. Without it there would be no wonderful fielders.

The American League.

The American League has by far the greatest number of individual stars. An all-star outfield would be all-American one, and at least five of the six greatest outfielders in the game today are members of teams in the younger circuit.

First choice would undoubtedly be made up of Cobb, Jackson and Speaker. Of that there could be not the slightest vestige of uncertainty. Even the second choice of Milan, Oldring and Cravath would seem weak in comparison.

In the National.

As for well-balanced combinations, there is no comparison. A dissection of each National League team shows some fault, and with one or two exceptions they are glaringly evident.

The Phillies are the greatest sluggers in the business, and in Paskert possess one of the most remarkable players in the country. Lack of speed is the one big asset they lack. Had they possessed that, they, instead of New York, would have faced the Athletics in the post-season tilt. Connolly, Mann and Zinn will probably make up the Boston outfield next season, as John Titus and Briscoe Lord have gone the way of the minors. They are all experiments, and it will take more than one season to demonstrate whether or not they are stars.

Brooklyn, too, is an uncertain quantity in the outfield. Wheat is, without doubt, one of the best in the game, and Charley Stengel, though inexperienced, seems to be on the high road of success. The other position has not been filled satisfactorily. Neither Bill Collins nor Benny Meyers hit to expected form, and it will be up to Wilbert Robinson to either find a new man, or else instill the ball-driving habit into Collins, who seems to have fully displaced Ben Myers.

Until the acquisition of Cincinnati's star the National League champions did not have an outfield with enough potential strength to drive them through a crisis. It has been the glaring mistakes of the outfield trio that has done more than anything else to keep a world's title from the metropolis. In 1911 Devore, Snodgrass, and especially Murray, made an absolute fizzle of their hitting efforts. Supposed to be the offensive bulwark of the team, they made exactly six hits in 60 times at bat, for a grand average of .096. Can you beat that? In 1912 their slugging was vastly improved, and "Red John" Murray fully redeemed himself for his miserable showing of the year previous. But it was the monumental muff of outfielder Snodgrass that tossed off the pennant when once it seemed safe in Giant clutches. This year Murray, of the original trio, only played through the entire series. Burns, a brilliant newcomer, and Shafer, a reformed infielder, were the new men. Again they failed to hit consistently, and even remarkable fielding could not make up the deficit. But now with George Burns, whose playing last year promises even better things this season, Jack Murray, the most sensational fielder in either league, and Rob Bescher, a hard hitter and wonderful baserunner, the Giants are very well fixed in regard to the outfield berths.

Well as they played last year, the Chicago gardeners would not be the choice of any sane person as the ideal one. It is only a matter of a few seasons before Tommy Leach, aged 37, and Frank Schulte, 33, answer the great call of organized baseball—the call to make way for newer blood.

Pittsburg, though having the wonderfully agile Max Carey, is not exactly strong. Mike Mitchell is past the 30-year notch, and the trading of Owen Wilson left a big gap to be filled.

The Cardinals will be strengthened by the acquisition of the ex-Buccaneer, but—and that "but" is all-important in the point that this article wishes to bring out—they are not as good as many in the American League.

Red Sox Stars.

Leading all others in the junior organization are the Boston Red Sox's stars. Their defense is almost perfect, their throwing arms the strongest in either league, and with Speaker hitting .365, Lewis .290, and Hooper .280, their attack is remarkable for its coherence and strength.

Strunk, Oldring and Murphy constitute a big element in the success of the world's champions. The first two are splendid fielders, and the latter is rapidly eradicating his one fault, an inability to get fly balls over his head. They can batter a twirler into a state of helpless dewilderment, and are fast as streaks of lightning.

Cleveland could be nothing else but strong with "Shoeless Joe" Jackson and the veteran Graney, even though a mediocre performer instead of the coming Leibold played the other position. The same, only with more emphasis, could be said of Detroit with Cobb and Crawford and the dashing Veach in the three positions. Cobb, greatest player of all time, Crawford, though aging, still a terror with his big stick, and Veach, a dashing youngster of wonderful promise, make up the trio.

Clarke Griffith has two crack-a-jack players in Milan and Moeller, and if he secures a harder hitter in place of the agile Howard Shanks, his outfield will be one of the greatest in the country.

In the Windy City, despite the fact that he fell off in his batting, Jack Collins was the most valuable man in the outfield. His adaptability or versatility, as you may choose to call it, is his greatest asset. "Shano" is a more reliable player than the sporadic Bodie, despite the latter's frequent slugging streaks. Larry Chappelle, the high-priced speed boy, has not yet proven himself worth the amount paid for him, but he may do as Rube Marquard did, and outlive the handicap of his costliness.

Of the three teams who are no more than ordinarily strong in the gardens, St. Louis has a shade the better of it. Bert Shotten hits close to .300, is a flash on the bases, and a lighting fast fielder. Around him the outfield is built. Neither "Gloomy Gus" Williams nor Clarence Walker are new to last company, so they are not handicapped by the inexperience from which other new men might suffer. It was Williams' big bat that broke the winning streaks of both Boehling and Walter Johnson last season, and it is his stick work that will keep him in the Browns' outfield.

The evidence has all been laid before you—the great American jury of Baseball Fans. It is for you to decide whether or not it justifies me in declaring that the American League outfielders are the superior of their contemporaries in the rival organization. In batting—the greatest asset of an outfielder—there is not a doubt that the Americans are far in the lead. In base running, team work and all-around efficiency the players of the younger organization are far away the better men. Only in fielding is there a doubt, and at best, the National Leaguers could claim no better than an even break. True, Murray and Paskert have no superiors, but Speaker and Strunck are at least, their equals.

Admit then, for the sake of argument, that there is no difference between them in that branch of the ball player's art. In every other phase of the business the palm must be handed unequivocally to the outfielders of the American League.

IN THE SPORTLIGHT

News and Reviews of the Week in the World of Sports.

Ban Johnson, Prophet.

Byron Bancroft Johnson, prophet! Aye, and a prophet whose prophecies come true!

Ask the big president of the American League about a little meeting held by a handful of men in Baltimore away back in 1899. Among those present were John J. McGraw, now manager of the Giants, and Harry Goldman, who is now secretary of the Baltimore Club of the Federal League.

Goldman has told the story. He, McGraw and a number of other ambitious spirits, who then were connected in one way or another with the Baltimore club or other National League outfits, assembled one night and spoke of the baseball situation in general and the possibility of there being room for another big league. All seemed to agree that there was a field for such a thing, but they didn't know how to go about it, or get hold of enough money to make things go.

Away out in the West was a young man named Johnson, formerly a sport writer, who had made a positive financial and artistic success of the Western League. To him they called for help and counsel. Johnson was asked to come East and talk with them about their idea of forming another big league. He came.

Ban Johnson, at this meeting, which Goldman says will live forever as the most striking experience within his memory, stood up and told the gathering just what he thought of their scheme. Let's quote Goldman:

"Johnson," he says, "predicted practically everything that has been done in baseball since that time. His most sensational remark of all was this in his exact words:

"'There is without a doubt room for two big leagues, probably room for three big leagues, and maybe room for four.'

"He said that, if we could get our league started properly, there was not a chance for it to fail. Eventually, the National League would be hurt so much by the competition that it would have to make a truce with us and join hands in a double-barreled organization, he continued.

"A lot of smaller leagues then would fall in line under protection of the two big leagues, he said, and a general association would be formed including practically every professional ball team in the country.

"He even foresaw the world's series. He said that the two big leagues would make arrangements for their pennant winners to meet regularly each year for the championship of the country."

"But his main prophecy was that I just spoke of—certainly two big leagues, probably three, and maybe four. The first part of that prediction did not come true until a year after our meeting in 1899. We decided then that we did not have time to make all arrangements, so put it all over for a year. Then in 1900 we got together and launched her, with the assistance of Charles W. Somers, now owner of the Cleveland Naps, who put up the biggest part of the money, and Charley Comiskey, our original circuit took in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Milwaukee and Minneapolis, which is considerably different from the American League of today.

"Now the second step of Johnson is prophecy is coming true in the Federal League. Yes, it is an odd coincidence that I should be in on this new one after starting the other. But we are sure to make good. A few times, when things looked rather dark for us, I just thought what Ban Johnson said fifteen years ago, and I perked up, took heart again and swore by the future of the Federal League with renewed confidence".

Ask Ban about it. He probably will be glad to give additional details from his memory. As a prophet he ranks alone in baseball.

Two New Heroes

The world's tour has made two immortal baseball heroes of men who might never have been mentioned a year or so from now if they had not gone on the trip. These two are Red Faber, the kid pitcher, and Tom Daly, the young first baseman of the White Sox. They achieved their quickly won fame in that picturesque game attended by King George in London. The Giants were short of reliable pitchers on the tour and Callahan lent Faber to McGraw for a number of games. And it was young Faber who held Jim Scott and Farmer Benz to a tie for ten innings in that famous game before the "kink". Daly's name will live forever in baseball history because of his eleventh inning home run that won the game for the Sox.

Eyes on Giants

Though they will be more or less "cynosure of all eyes" anyway because of being last year's pennant winners and figured favorites in this year's National League fight, the Giants will be watched more closely than ever to see what effect the world's jaunt has had on the playing of the men who made the trip. McGraw says it has made a star out of Jim Thorpe, previously a doubtful quantity. A more important thing, though, is how has the trip affected stars of known magnitude, 'frinstance, Larry Doyle, Sam Crawford and Tris Speaker.

Behan With Feds

A man in organized baseball makes the charge that Louis J. Behan, the Chicago lawyer who offered Charles P. Taft $700,000 for the Cubs, is in sympathy with the Federal League and that he made his conditional bid only for the purposed of attracting attention later to his statement that the reserve clause would not hold good before a civil court. It will be recalled that Behan's offer was contingent upon a decision being obtained from the court of last resort as to the validity of the reserve clause. Later he said that, with it possible for the Feds to grab any players they wanted from the Cubs, the team was not worth any more than the real estate the park is built on.

C. Herzog.

Charley Herzog, as a player, is one of the noisiest little hustlers in the game. But as a manager he has been practically a sphinx thus far. Maybe the directors of the Cincinnati Reds have throttled him. But "Buck" is a fellow not likely to stay throttled. Here is one man who, according to our idea, knows how to be noisy without making a fool of himself, as some other men do every time they open their traps very wide.

Quit Your Kiddin'.

Wilbert Robinson must be trying to kid us. The news sent out of Augusta, Ga., where his Brooklyn Dodgers are training, to the effect that Kid Eberfeld will probably be his regular shortstop this year, is about as near to unbelievable as anything we have heard this Winter. Eberfeld in the old days, was a wonderful little infielder both at third base and at shortfield, but it is impossible to imagine him filling a regular berth now, after being out of the Chattanooga club as manager, and has enough brains and pepper to be useful to Robinson or any other manager as an assistant and coach for young players, but as for getting in there himself and handling the grounders and slamming out the old basehit—well, it seems as if it can't be done. Yet other apparent miracles have happened in baseball, and this may be another link in the long chain of them. But we repeat, we think Robby is kidding us.

Evers' Hard (?) Luck.

Speaking of the transfer of Evers, it may be remarked that John might have had worse things befall him than his election from the Cub management. Time was when the Braves were the laughing stock of the older league, but ever so often most things undergo a change. You remember the time when it was considered a great joke to refer to Washington as "First in War, First in Peace, and Last in the American League".

MOSTLY CONTEMPLATIVE

By T. W. Chambliss.

What a world of shadow—multitudes, both of men and of women, seem to live under the shadow. It seems that a great host of souls shrink beneath the cloud of some nameless, unspoken grief. It may be merely a disappointment in their life plans. Yet that very disappointment seems to have conquered them. It may be simply a failure in business or an unsatisfied ambition, yet the darkness seems to have gripped them. In some instances there is a blighted hope, an unrequited affection, some sad mistake, and the brightness of their day is turned into a dull gray.

A long time ago the Galilean Teacher spoke words of blessing upon those who mourn and one of the olden-time writers said, "Nothing teaches the soul so many things as sorrow." Sometimes it seems that sorrow and suffering are set in the life programme of some souls. They appear to be a part of the earthly lot. The babe smiles—the same babe weeps. When we have grown too old and too proud to weep—we still, like the babe, suffer. There is surely a purpose in the shady side of life.

* * *

Much of the heartache in this world comes from a maladjustment of personal relation. There are many chronic misunderstandings. In fact, it seems almost impossible to enjoy good understanding, even with the most intimate friends. Sometimes those who have grown from very babyhood together seem to be unable even to speak to each other without exciting some antagonism or antipathy, it appears that there is always some petty differences, some little jangle or jam of different temperament. The pain is in the heart—there may be a smile upon the lips but the sound of joy is suppressed and the voice is silent, and the life goes on in a wearying and weakening manner as of inward bleeding.

Many people carry the marks of some inward bruise, inflicted all unawares. They are heavy-hearted because they are over-weighted with sensitiveness. They feel every look, they catch every tone, they seem to sense every breath of criticism or of disapproval. Somtimes they crave sympatny and they long for appreciation. They seem to feel that it is rather neglect and they wither in loneliness. The world is moving on, thoughtless of any inflicted sting and the sensitive ones loiter behind, overlooked, unconsidered, and apparently forgotten, and then, immediately they take it for granted that they are considered "nobodies."

Others, like caged birds, beat their wings against the bars of hard unyielding circumstance and are wretched because of unsatisfied desire. They long for—but perhaps, with string, active impulse, they do not know exactly how or where to place themselves and the world is busy and does not wait for them to find themselves. The soul is gripped with longing—ambition drives like a master—but the soul does not exactly know and the end is seeming failure—then comes darkness, dispair, sorrow.

* * *

Sometimes it does seem that some are victims of a pitiless destiny—they seem to be consigned to failure and to defeat. Sometimes it does seem that destiny, an iron-handed monster, has driven them into a prison yard, shut and fastened the gates and yet not content, has loaded them with ball and chain and condemned to toil that brings not reward. Serious illness and sharp pain may pass, soon be over with and one be in better health than before. One can bear the suffering that promises to be short-lived but chronic miseries grow stale and do not rouse the fortitude, but leave one to settle into life-long weariness and irresolution.

Some people seem to have been born under the shadow. Born with little capacity for either joy or hope. It is pathetic to note the look of age on a child—a child without a smile. Sometimes adult faces have the same withered, painful, smileless appearance. It it distressing. But it is unnecessary. There is no cloud but it could have been blacker. No storm but it could have been more severe. No disappointment but it could have been greater. There is no "iron-handed destiny" forcing a soul into everlasting weariness. Man should rise from the ash heap of mistake and failure and try the path again—hit the line hard.

In the meanwhile the opportunity is here for those who have the sunlight of blessing and success to extend a strong and with a mighty grip help the sorrow-stricken soul to a higher plane. Turn the sorrow-stricken soul's mental force in another direction, outward, forward, upward, so it is away from the sore point. Suggest that room be made for other thoughts, feelings, interests. Attempting to drown woe in sensual intoxication or coarse stimulants brings not relief, the better way is to seek higher thoughts and higher power.

After all—it is a small business to be feeling our feelings and worrying with our moods. "Happy, my brother," says Carlyle, "First, of all, what difference is it whether thou are happy or not? Today becomes yesterday so fast; all tomorrows become yesterdays; and then there is no question whatever of the happiness, but quite another question. Nay, thou hast such a sacred pity left, at least for thyself, thy very pains, once gone over into yesterday, have become joys to thee. Besides, thou knowest not what heavenly, blessedness, what indispensable sanatory virtue is in them. Thou shalt only know it after many days, when thou art wiser."

While we sit brooding over our troubles and the hardship of our lot—the world goes tranquilly on, the infinite sky still covers us, the everlasting order abides and "God is where He was." If we keep our souls in patience, if we hold fast to our faith and hope and love, the soft streams of healing will flow into us and through us.

"Statistics of a Western city show that married men are more orderly than unmarried ones." Every class is more orderly when in subjection.—Richmond News-Leader.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 15

I. AWFUL USE OF THE SABBATH.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:10-17; 14:1-6.

GOLDEN TEXT—"The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."—Mark 2:27.

These two sections of scripture have been chosen that we might emphasize the truth of the golden text which can correctly be translated, "The Sabbath was brought into being on account of man, and not man on account of the Sabbath."

There are two extremes of thought and action as regards the Christian Sabbath. One is to make it a holiday, the other to make it a holy-day, to worship the day as though it possessed some secret sacredness thereby forgetting the author of the day. A study of what Jesus taught will check laxity on the one hand and correct fanatical error on the other.

Contrast Shown.

I. Jesus loosing the woman, 13:10-17. This incident is a strong contrast between God's mercy and man's lack of mercy. Satan was to blame for the woman's illness (v. 16) and at the same time for the hardness of the hearts of these men. The incident occurred in a synagogue and displeased the leaders. As if to rebuke them Jesus not only spoke the word of relief but also touched her, causing an instantaneous and a complete cure. Her response was to glorify God. The sight of this satanic captive acted in contrast upon Jesus and the ruled of the synagogue. Compassion and an utter lack of sympathy. More care for legalism than for the relief of one created in God's image. Jesus seems to have acted speedily and is today calling the unfortunate to him to be healed and comforted, Matt. 11:28-30. Jesus could have healed by a word only, John 5:40-43, but there is power also in the loving touch, which in this case quickened her faith (v. 13). The record does not suggest that her cure was in response to her faith as was the case in other cures, Matt. 8:10; 15:28. If the ruler had had a heart of compassion he too would have rejoiced at the cure, but he cared more for ceremonial ecclesiasticism than for the good of the worshipers and his emotion was that of indignation rather than that of joy. A religion that is more concerned with bondage to the beggarly elements, the observance of days (Gal. 4:9-11) is here denounced as hypocrisy (vv. 15, 16). It is to have more interest in property than in human souls. Ofttimes hatred for those who do not agree with us is covered up by a false fanatical pretended jealousy for the law of God.

Love's Attribute.

II. Jesus healing the man, 4:1-6. In this incident the question of the Sabbath is raised by Jesus himself, evidently in answer to their mental attitude, for "they watched him" (v. 1). Receiving no reply, Jesus first healed the man and then again reminded them of the care they gave their cattle. Jesus plainly implies that if they give care to an ox or an ass on the Sabbath, how can it possibly be wrong to relieve humanity on the Sabbath? Mercy and love are superior to ceremonies though these be of divine appointment. The reasoning is clear. Love is an attribute of God's character, I. John 4:8, and therefore his own ceremonies must give way before the activities and energies of his being. Thus to act upon the principles that concern the value of an "or or an ass" is to allow the lower to control the higher, for a man is of more value than the ox. These Pharisees were exceedingly religious, great for the "letter of the law," but they were dried up at heart, and consequently far worse off than the man with the dropsy. It is small wonder then that the master's reply should silence them so "they could not answer him."

The Teaching.—It is true that fundamentally the Sabbath idea is one of worship and rest, but the reason for its existence is because of man's need of that rest. That true rest can be found only in a true and intelligent spiritual fellowship with God. Anything, therefore, that interferes with or hinders rest breaks the Sabbath and should be removed in order that the Sabbath intention may be observed. These men were justified in leading an ox or an ass to water on the Sabbath or to rescue one in peril. On the same principle any work which enables men to enter into a Sabbath rest is not only justifiable but necessary in the interest of the Sabbath itself. They cared for cattle only as cattle, their property; we must care for men for their own sakes and in his interest and behalf.

The Sabbath must never be desecrated by being made an instrument of harm to man. It is always desecrated when, in the presence of human need, we decline to render service on the plea of the sanctity of the day. A false ceremonial sanctity of any particular day must never be permitted to destroy the underlying, the truly essential, sanction and authority for a Sabbath rest. Physically we do not each night fully regain our lost energy and need the seventh day to balance the account. Spiritually we need the strength that comes from the Sabbath day's rest, Isa. 30:15.

As a rule, nothing is ever recovered from the courts, but an exception must be made in the case of Harry K Thaw, who is getting his mind back.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

RAMBLINGS.

(By T. W. Chambliss.)

Men are the most important factors in the world of business.

When you begin to talk to any other man, keep in a straight line in front of you the object of your talk.

That which hampers men, more than any other thing, is their own doubt of their ability.

The only real reason why so many men fail to forge to the front is that they fail to recognize their own latent ability.

The first essential to success is health—good health. The healthy mind demands a healthy body for its larger development.

What is the difference in men? Ability. Yet there is the opportunity of developed ability in every man. The man of "one talent" should strive to develop the "one" and make it divisible into two talents.

An important quality is "initiative"—it is called skill in a surgeon. To do things quickly takes initiative and things are to be done quickly these busy days. It is not nearly so wrong to make a mistake as it is to fail to make the effort.

An important quality is "tact"—the ability of dealing with another man and getting along with him. Tact is not so much what a man says as how he says it. Tact is a rare quality, but it can be developed. Men are of different temperaments, and it is wise to study those differences.

Many times men fail to consider the importance of "tact" in letter writing—cold type does not carry the warm life blood of the spoken word. Result-getting correspondence must be tactful correspondence. Hot words dictated become ice-bound messages when written.

No man knows it all—some think they do. The man who knows it all will likely find the "fool-killer" close by—if he looks about him. The fact is that the man who knows it all at sunrise finds himself almost a "back-number" at noon. This is an age of progression.

Never ridicule a new idea—the man who does not believe in "air-ships" may yet receive his morning paper by that means of delivery. It is but a few years since the idea of the transmission of messages by electricity was ridiculed.

Sometimes the "booster" is the object of ridicule. A "booster" is a man who does all the good he can to all the people he can as well as he can. On the contrary, the "knocker" is defined as "a thing that hangs on the outside of the door." Much good has come from the "booster."

Enthusiasm is important. Man without enthusiasm is a mere statue. Enthusiasm is the white heat which fuses all of the good qualities of a man into one effective mass. To keep out of a rut requires enthusiasm. By the way, the difference between a rut and a grace is a matter of width and depth. We graduate from one to the other.

Put your personality into your business—but it must be a pleasing personality, possibly a cheerful smile or a friendly word. He who has business with you will carry away a memory which draws him again to you when the need appears.

Concentration upon one's own affairs leaves no time for the unnecessary consideration of the affairs of others. "Speak ill of no one and attend to your own business," is as wise and forceful today as when first uttered by Franklin.

Obstacles were made to determine the true value of success. It is well to remember that the tide is lowest when just at the point of turning. Learn how to hang on, notwithstanding the bleak face of the demon of failure.

Start every day right by tallying your work to yourself. Unless your task be a daily delight rather than a daily duty you will not present the best side of yourself and your task to the world. Be cheerful, smile, stand erect and hold up your head. Courage, faith and a happy mood will result in success.

The discovery of radium, it is understood, has caused geologists to change their theories regarding the age of the earth, and the effects of this important announcement on the earth are awaited with extreme interest.

THE WEEK'S NEWS REVIEWED IN BRIEF

Glimpses of the World at Large, Little News Stories of the Carolinas, and a Resume of Local Doings, Prepared for the Busy Man and the Week-End Reader.

Of General Interest

All phases of the woman suffrage question were presented to the House judiciary committee Tuesday.

William Church Osborn has been elected chairman of the New York Democratic State committee.

Gen. Carranza upheld the action of Gen. Villa in halting the commission investigating Benton's death.

President Wilson urged Congress in joint session Thursday to repeal the Panama Canal tolls exemption.

Police women of Chicago have been declared to be a failure at handling disorderly perons of their own sex.

The general arbitration treaty between the United States and Paraguay has been renewed for five years.

Customs receipts for February fell off slightly more than ten million dollars, as compared with the same month of 1913.

The divorce suit brought by Alexander Broderick Leslie-Melville against his wife in England has been withdrawn.

President Wilson has signed the bill limiting the hours of labor of women in the District of Columbia to eight hours.

Secretary McAdoo has been notified that Louisiana would take the Cuban sugar preferential ruling to the Supreme court.

Special Commissioner Morris has been officially notified that Italy will participate in the exposition at San Francisco.

The Chicago board of trade has been arraigned as the weapon of a price-controlling monopoly before the House rules committee.

Louis W. Hill has been elected president of the Great Northern Railway.

Bishop Thomas Bowman died in Orange, N. J., Tuesday.

The United States army forces in Hawaii are to be increased from 8,000 to 14,000 or 15,000 men, as soon as the troops can be transferred from the States.

Col. Goethals has submitted to President Wilson a complete review of plans for the organization of a permanent government in the Panama Canal Zone.

If England insists upon an investigation of the Benton killing and Gen. Carranza persists in blocking the inquiry, the American government may be forced to take strong measures.

Attorneys for the United States Steel Corporation have asked the Inter-State Commerce Commission to re-open the matter of allowances to short lines of railroads serving industries.

The United States Supreme Court holds that Federal inspectors can not condemn "bleached" flour unless they prove the flour contains enough poison ingredients to be injurious to health.

The conviction of Charles Becker of the murder of Herman Rosenthal has been reversed and the convictions of the four gunmen for the same crime has been confirmed by the New York Court of Appeals.

David Lamar, of New York, before the Inter-State Commerce Commission, asserted that the United States Steel Corporation during the last six years had received from railroads not less than $75,000,000 in rebates.

A northeast storm, swerving to the northwest, which brought first rain and then snow, raged over New York and vicinity Sunday, cutting the city almost completely off from telegraph and telephone communication. Reports showed its effect to be widespread.

The Benton investigating commission Sunday was prevented from proceeding to Chihuahua to examine the slain Briton's body by rebel orders. Col. Fidel Avila, military commander at Juarez, declined to permit them to board the regular passenger train which was waiting.

"Modern extreme styles in women's dress and the body dances now in vogue offend the esthetic sense, and have not one redeeming feature," is the opinion of Mme. Pevsner, of Palestine, who Sunday delivered an address before the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Above Sholem Tabernacle, Washington, D. C.

Trust legislation, and a new law to enhance rural credits before adjournment of Congress are the only measures on the "must" list of the administration for the present session of Congress, it was made known Sunday. This, of course, excepts the necessary appropriation bills which now are being rapidly disposed of.

Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic floor leader of the House, announced Monday that he would lead a fight against the repeal of the free toll clause of the Panama Canal act. Senator Thornton announced that he would vote for the repeal of free tolls, although he did not believe the provision violated the treaty.

Although the House committee on merchant marine and fisheries, in a report of its investigation of steamship agreements in the foreign and domestic trade of the United States, made public Saturday night, did not undertake to discuss the merits of the Panama tolls issue, nevertheless the practical elimination of canal tolls as a factor affecting competition between water and rail coast-to-coast traffic is indicated, should certain recommendations be enacted into law.

Judged by their present attitude progressive Republican Senators, no less than conservatives, will refrain from encouraging any movement having as its ultimate object the nomination of Col. Theodore Roosevelt for the Presidency in 1916. With the sole exception of Senator Miles Poindexter, of Washington, the only Bull Moose Senator in the collection, none of the Republican progressives is at this time in sympathy with the colonel heading the National ticket again, and, of course, the average conservative is decidedly against it.

However, the bidding ran up to $130, which was beyond the limit the State had specified.

An edict of the mayor of Kinston put the ban on snow balling. Since the coming of the heavy snow on Wednesday young Kinston had indulged itself more freely than was ever known before in this winter pleasure. Objecting pedestrians were mercilessly pelted on the streets, and a number of affrays occurred out of which grew cases in municipal court and hard feelings of parents for chastisers of the thoughtless small boys. One or two lads who tormented their victims beyond endurance were summarily dealt with by the offended. Cases in which bricks were used in snowballs came to the knowledge of the police.

The Week Locally

After living 106 years in Wilmington, Israel Howe, a negro well known to many of the older citizens of the city, died Monday night as a result of burns which he suffered three weeks ago when a lamp was overturned. The burns caused acute inflamation of the kidneys from which death resulted.

Rev. L. B. Padgett, of Greensboro, was the speaker at the regular Men's mass meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. On account of the windy weather there was not a large attendance. The subject discussed by the speaker in a most interesting and instructive manner was "Choosing a Life Work."

Drawing the jury for the three weeks' term of Superior court which convenes March 30th, hearing the reports of the superintendents of the county roads and the county farm, and making a number of changes in the assessments of property for taxes were the principal matters taken up by the Board of County Commissioners at their regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon.

George W. Taylor, formerly of Salisbury, for the past several years freight conductor for the Atlantic Coast Line, was instantly killed by falling from his train between Lake Waccamaw and Bolton at 2:40 Sunday morning. He was walking on top of the cars from the caboose to the engine when he lost his balance and fell. The train was from Florence to Wilmington.

The British steamer City of Naples, which had been in port for several days, sailed Tuesday with a part cargo of 3,000 bales of cotton from Wilmington, which was consigned from Alexander Sprunt & Son to Kobe, Japan. She will go to Port Tampa and thence to Mobile and possibly to Galveston to finish loading. She will then sail for Japan going via the Suez Canal.

All the ministers of the city will undertake to have the every-member canvass for missions in their churches on the afternoon of March 22. A campaign of education was inaugurated in January and has been continually pushed. Great interest and enthusiasm has been aroused, and it is believed that the results here will surpass that of any similar city of the South.

Wilmington experienced during Sunday night and the early hours of Monday morning as severe a wind storm as has visited the city in many moons, accompanied by low temperatures that came very near breaking all records for March. At its lowest point the thermometer registered 22, and, while this was not as low as was reached last week, it was felt much more on account of the piercing wind.

The schooner Greenleaf Johnson, which, outward bound with a cargo of lumber, went ashore near the mouth of Shallotte river during a gale last October, was sold by Mr. Martin S Willard, as agent for the Underwriters, at public auction on the Stone company's docks here Tuesday morning, Mr. C. D. Maffitt, of Maffitt & Wood, bidding in the vessel, part cargo, rigging, etc., for the sum of $324.50.

After 16 years of litigation, the case of Mr. B. F. Penny against the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company was settled Tuesday when attorneys representing the railroad turned over to Maj. W. N. Harriss, clerk of Superior Court, a check for $3,500, the amount awarded the plaintiff at the last term of Superior Court. The verdict returned at that time was that the defendant company also pay the cost. This the railroad will do. It was stated at the clerk's office that the costs amount to about $1,025.

A first mortgage on real estate, securing a $50,000,000 issue of 5 per cent, sinking fund gold bonds, was filed for record at the court house Monday, the largest instrument, in point of the amount involved as well as in actual bulk, that has ever been received by the Register of Deeds in this county. The instrument is from Swift & Co., of Chicago, to the First Trust & Savings Bank and Emile K. Boisot, of Chicago, trustee, and it covers real estate in more than 90 counties in the United States.

A sensation was created in political circles here by the announcement in telegraphic dispatches from The Star's Washington correspondent in Sunday's issue to the effect that Mr. B. F. Keith, the present collector of customs and a Republican, has no intention of giving up the position until his term expires, and that the Woodrow Wilson Club, of Wilmington, had protested to the Secretary of the Treasury against his removal from office to make place for a Democratic successor. Col. Walker Taylor, who has been recommended for the position by Senator Simmons and Overman and the entire North Carolina delegation in Congress.

CATARRH IS A DANGEROUS DISEASE FREQUENT COLDS OFTEN THE CAUSE

Use Hyomei—It's the Surest and Most Effective Way to Reach the Sore and Inflamed Mucous Membrane—You Breathe It.

Just as long as you have catarrh your head will be stopped up, your nose will itch, your breath will be foul, you will hawk and sniffle, you will have droppings in the throat and that choked-up feeling in the morning. The germs of catarrh have you in their power; they are continually irritating the mucous membrane of your nose and throat—you feel miserable.

If you do not promptly banish catarrh the disease will become most serious, for it will surely and rapidly spread to the delicate mucous membrane lining the nose, throat and bronchial tubes, and may even affect the lungs. It will in time undermine your reason, rob your brain of its brilliancy and activity, and leave you not only a physical but a mental wreck.

This picture is not overdrawn. Demoralizing results come from the ravaging attacks of horrible catarrh, one of the really serious diseases of the nation.

At the first symptom of catarrh, such as frequent head colds, surely use Hyomei. It's the sensible treatment—no roundabout process of drugging the stomach to upset digestion—you breathe it.

Hyomei is a combination of antiseptic and germicidal oils. When breathed through the small inhaler that comes with every complete outfit, it mixes naturally with the air and goes directly to the inflamed and diseased tissues, instantly beginning its balsamic healing, and quickly restoring health to the irritated mucous membrane. You cannot help feeling better after the first Hyomei treatment.

Do not become a catarrh victim—it is not only unnecessary, but very dangerous. Start using Hyomei at the first catarrhal sign. All druggists sell it. The complete outfit, $1.00 size—is what you need. Rob't R. Bellamy recommends it.

WORK AT BOYS' BRIGADE

Review of the Life and Activity of the Organization Covering the Past Ten Months.

(Contributed.)

One of the busiest little institutions in the city these days is the Boys' Brigade. And of all the busy years of the past, the period from May, 1913, to February 28th, 1914, has been the most active along all lines of the work of the organization. Recovering from the disastrous fire of last May, the work was resumed with renewed vigor and there has not been a dull moment since. This activity is marked along all lines, physical, social, educational, religious. The membership has grown to 135. This number is not large, judged from the standpoint of numbers only, but when it is remembered that each of these young men and boys obligate themselves to attend Sunday School and the stated meetings of the Brigade, it is not small, and means that 135 men and boys, many of whom would not attend Sunday School, do so every Sunday and receive the benefit to be derived from this source in the development of character.

Then their presence at the stated weekly meetings enables those having this work in charge to meet with the members at least once each week and provides the members with the benefits of the practical addresses upon educational and other subjects which are delivered there. The social pleasure of these gatherings is another important feature which cements the friendship of these young men and boys as nothing else could do it, developing an espre de corps which is not usually found in other organizations.

One of the most successful and pleasant encampments ever conducted by the organization was held at Carolina Beach last Summer when the members of the junior company spent one week on the seashore in tents and were immediately followed for a like period by the older members of the Brigade. These encampments are always very pleasant and helpful features in the lives of these boys and young men, affording them an opportunity to live together out of doors where they associate intimately, which keeps them interested in each other and wheer they receive the benefit of the discipline of such an encampment and the healthful recreation which this out of door life affords.

The athletics of the Brigade have been very successfully conducted. This little organization put out a baseball team which won the championship of the city for the past two years and another team which succeeded in capturing the basketball championship of the city last year, besides defeating several out-of-town teams. The gymnasium has always been a very popular place for the members, about 75 per cent. of whom use it for various purposes, some in regular classes, others individually, others for basketball, etc. There are classes for boys, business men and young men. The business men's class is composed of some of the most prominent men in the city, who meet at 6 o'clock every day except Saturday, and boys twice each week. Others prefer the bowling alleys. The Brigade is developing some really fine gymnasts and athletes in which effort it is contributing largely to the health of the members. There are 14 basketball teams, with 70 players.

Among the educational features may be mentioned the series of practical talks which are delivered from time to time by prominent men, among whom are some very successful educators, all of whom deal with subjects of daily interest and importance. The library donated by Mr. James Sprunt is another valuable feature which is generally used, and there is a list of twenty-two of the leading magazines and periodicals which the members have for use. Another feature of an educational value as well as affording much clean wholesome entertainment is the lyceum course which is being conducted. It is interesting to know that as a result of the encouragement which is given along educational lines many of the Brigade boys are graduates of the local schools and several of the colleges of the State and these occupy prominent positions in the commercial and professional life of the city.

The armory is in constant use. During the past ten months 36,604 visits have been made to this institution. These were members and those who attended the various attractions in the auditorium and all other features. The use of the armory is not restricted to hours, but is open for the use of the members from early morning to late at night. The only restriction is that the small boys are excluded after 6 o'clock that the men may have free use of the building. Whenever special attractions are going on in which the little fellows are interested they are admitted at night. They use the gymnasium, baths, reading room and every other feature every day. There are 45 boys in this group. They enjoy every privilege to which the older members are entitled. Their dues are 25 cents per month which includes towels, lockers, camp and everything else necessary to their enjoyment and benefit.

The Bible classes are conducted, one for boys and one for the men. Since October 1st 31 classes have been conducted, with an attendance of 1,500 which is an average per class of nearly 50. Several of the members have been led into membership with the various churches of the city recently. The social life of the Brigade is one of the pleasant features which keeps life bright and happy for these youths and young men. The result of all this is that character and manhood is being developed which exhibits itself in the everyday walk of life wherein character counts. Many have already developed into useful and honorable citizens and many more are so developing who are and will be citizens such as any community likes to boast.

Col. Walker Taylor, the founder, is still active in this work, meeting with the boys every Monday night and advising with them at all times whenever they require it. He is still the father of the institution. Mr. Chas Dushan is the manager of this work, who directs its every activity; to whom falls the duty of planning and executing every feature of the work except those falling directly into the hands of the founder. The work is supported by membership dues, voluntary subscriptions from those who know of the valuable work this institution is doing and through miscellaneous sources. The cost of maintenance is very small, amounting to less than three thousand dollars per year which, considering the results obtained, is exceedingly economical. The lyceum course is self-sustaining. This institution numbers among its friends and supporters many of the most prominent and wealthy people in the city who believe in the work it is doing and who give it their moral, personal and financial support.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Illinois.

FASTING:—Last week I told you about fasting and the "fasting cure." It's a deep and interesting subject and to know it thoroughly is to know much, but I presume not many of you had thought of the fasting cure. We like the idea of feasting better than fasting. It appeals to our sense of gustatory enjoyment. We at once think of many good things to eat and of which we are particularly fond but when you come to know by experience the true inwardness of fasting as a cure you will think of it differently.

Let me tell you of a case, not one of mine. Up to the present time I have never had but one case in which it was necessary to practically compel the patient to eat more. I will tell you of it later. The first case of which I spoke was the wife of a neighbor, she had been a very bright and unusually attractive young woman, very fond of horses and outdoor sports. After an unusually hard day's riding in the sun she had a severe headache and the family physician was called. He gave her morphine. It was not long until another attack brought another dose and in a few months the doctor had a very profitable case, a confirmed morphine fiend.

The plump rosy cheeks grew thin and pallid and a happy wife and mother was changed into a fretful, nagging wreck. No rest night or day without the stupifying drug and when my advice was sought I advised a certain rest cure sanitarium where the craving for drugs was overcome through the stuffing cure, rather than fasting cure. She was put to bed and a reliable nurse kept over there. Raw eggs and milk was supplied in abundance and this patient that had been eating but little if anything except morphine was gradually forced to consume from ten to twelve eggs daily and also from three to four quarts of fresh, sweet milk. The organs of elimination were kept active, massage and passive exercise was employed and after three months of steady and watchful treatment she was apparently cured. After a brief stay at home, however, she was again as bad as ever and dispaired of ever making a complete recovery, but she was a good fighter and again took the stuffing cure for a long period and has now been free from the habit for several years, but she is almost as broad as she is tall. From a living skeleton to a champion fat woman with no disposition to relinquish the feasting. Far better than the drug habit, but still a condition not to be desired.

Club Notes

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

DEAR DOCTOR:—I am not getting along as well as usual and have now concluded I have dysentary, am much better of a pile trouble with which I suffered. The salt water enema previously suggested by you did good. I have been better for a day or two or three days at a time, and then would have a bad day. I cannot take a cold enema,, but have taken several warm ones with vinegar added, which seems to do good, but it don't last. The cold enema seems to almost put me into cramps all over. Tell me what to do. Mrs. J. H.

In the Home Health Club Volume 2 under the heading of Dysentery, you will find a home method of treatment described, which if followed by you would undoubtedly greatly aid in overcoming the trouble. However, you did not mention any special symptoms that would lead me to think it is dysentary. In such cases the abdomen is, as a rule, swollen. There is considerable desire to evacuate the bowels, and a feeling as if some solid substance was in the rectum that should be expelled. The number of small evacuations from the bowels may be ten or fifteen or more every hour in acute cases. Such a condition is very exhausting, and the patient loses flesh rapidly. In otherwise healthy persons, under favorable circumstances a simple case of dysentary may subside within a few days or week, especially if the proper treatment and care are given. The feces are often mingled with slimy mucus, usually streaked with blood. In most cases there will be more or less fever. The tongue is always coated. The general health suffers, as already stated, and lack of appetite, sleeplessness and restlessness at night will follow. In chronic cases there is very little pain or fever, but here is great weakness. The discharge causes irritation and finally ulceration in the rectum, and the least movement or exposure to cold may cause great distress.

In addition to the treatment mentioned in Volume 2 on the subject I would further impress upon your mind the great necessity of absolute quietude. Rest in a recumbent position is indispensable for recovery from even very mild cases. Flannels wrung out of hot water may be placed over the abdomen and frequently renewed or stimulating liniment may be applied. When the diarrhoea first starts with a straining sensation, milk of magnesia should be freely given. If there is feverishness take a weak infusion of Lady Slipper and Pleurisy Root. Always try to avoid many passages from the bowels. It may seem from the straining sensation that going to stool is imperative but determination and a recumbent position may delay evacuations a long time. When there is a great distress at stools, sitting on a bed vessel containing steaming hot water will afford relief. In more severe cases hot water bottles to the feet and frequent bathing of the limbs and body with stimulating liniment are required. Nourishment during dysentary must be very light, such as malted milk, chicken or mutton broth, oyster liquor, etc. All alcoholic liquors are very dangerous, as well as ice drinks. Water containing a little gum arabic will keep the mouth moist, even when taken in teaspoonful doses.

For internal use I will not suggest anything more at present than a special preparation of tissue foods to be selected for such a condition. Later on when the trouble has subsided something else may also be needed, something which will aid in increasing your strength. Continue with the salt water enemas, which seem to have done you good.

WHO WILL THE WINNER BE?

BY A LOOKER-ON IN VIENNA

Dedicated to S. A. Mathews, the poet laureate of the Democratic Club, with apologies to the Ministerial Union and Good Order League.

(Note—This is a poem. The fact is stated lest it be not perceived.)

I

"WHO IS THE MAN THAT FILLS THE BILL?
"IT'S STACY."
And whose the will of the bill he will fill?
'Tis Furlong's
And with all his brain and might and main,
He stands no higher on a level plain
Than Furlong.

II

"WHO IS THE MAN SAYS THE PEOPLE SHALL RULE?
"IT'S STACY."
An original thought, he never wrought;
Plays it in fancy, attuned to Aunt Nancy,
While trimmed and chiseled and used as a tool
For declaiming and whooping to eloquent rule,
The pious, political, predatory scheme
Of preachers, Furlong and county machine.

III

"WHO IS THE FRIEND OF THE LABORING MAN?
"IT'S STACY."
Provided he can, with help of the clans,
Exploit him and vote him, with purpose to tote
Willard and Nesbitt and Moore of the goats
On the laborer's shoulders in sanitary cans.

IV

"WHO IS THE MAN WHO TELLS US THE FACTS?
"IT'S STACY."
And defends the men who levied the tax
Which went into statistics of useless facts,
And counseled the board which fixed the rates
For extravagant salaries of officials elate;
Who proclaims the fact, the city bankrupt,
Bonded to death by Democrats;
Then whoops the party, which did the wrong,
Leaving the people, the dance and song.

V

"WHO IS THE MAN WHO CAN REPRESENT?
"IT'S STACY."
The acts of men who now undo
Good they may have done before;
Endorse in praise Recorder's deeds,
Bewhile did shock their moral needs.

VI

"WHO IS THE MAN THAT SHOULD BE SENT?
"IT'S STACY."
Back to his Blackstone with serious intent
To revel in learning on pages of Kent,
Till his full of energy, push and vim
Finds better cause with which to trim.

VII

"WHO IS THE MAN WHO IS GOING TO WIN?
NOT STACY.
For the people, with observant ken,
Behind his gun, behold the men!
See the preacher to politician turned,
See the politician to priestcraft burned,
Incense offering to Democracee
In the cant and chant of Pharisee.
Fine! Fine! we say, is this young Demosthene!
Alack-a-day, that he should be in such bad companee!

VIII

Shades of Milton, Pitt and Clay,
Wells-bach Burners, Galloway.
We will them lay down to sleep,
Not fur-long do reformers pray:
May the Lord their souls to keep,
Walking, in the straight and righteous way.

IX

Not the oil of Fergus toil
Can smooth the troubled waters,
When piety and politics boil,
And merge in public matters.

X

Not the call of Jimmie Carr,
Nor whip of party hate,
Can change to stars the ugly scars
He scalped on Furlong's pate.

XI

Not the lines of Mathews' rhyme
Can cleanse the deal in slime,
Nor Stacy's name with all his fame,
Obscure the combines' game.

XII

Honors await him some day of grace,
Unfettered by the mongrel sway;
But for this race the folks are braced
And the people will have their way.

XIII

Shades of Moses. With blithering mite,
Smite the Phillistines, day and night,
Let them rum for a little fun,
But Kellum, we vote, by-gum.

lish constitution, which took the power of the veto away from that English reactionary body, the House of Lords, Lloyd-George, the famous Liberal leader, was the instrument that brought about this change, but it was Joseph Fels that taught him the doctrine of the taxation of land values and inspired him to make the fight to deprive the House of Lords of its czar-like power of the veto.

The amendment was the first change in the English constitution for more than a century, and its effect upon legislation for the masses was inestimable.

Prior thereto the House of Lords could effectually block by the veto any progressive legislation that encroached upon the "divine rights" of English royalty.

England again felt the influence of the constructive mind and far-sighted vision of Joseph Fels, when he purchased 1300 acres at Hollesley Bay, in England, and organized a colony for the unemployed. The plan attracted wide attention and was so successful that the proposition was subsequently taken over by the government.

A little later Mr. Fels bought 600 acres at Maylands, Essex, England, which was placed under cultivation by small holders. The plan is still being watched and studied with interest by economists the world over.

Gave Away $250,000 a Year

It was Joseph Fels who financed the agitation in England five years ago that led to the introduction of the land feature in the English budget, and which has caused such a stir in English politics.

It has been estimated that Mr. Fels gave away more than $250,000 every year to establish the single-tax propaganda throughout the civilized world. He founded the Joseph Fels fund in America, to which he contributed $25,000 annually. He gave away $25,000 annually in England, $5,000 in Denmark, $5,000 in Canada and contributed large funds in other countries to boost the single-tax movement.

In addition, the single-tax leader was a supporter of the Fairhope single-tax colony at Mobile Bay, Ala., and of the single-tax colony at Arden, Del. He inaugurated the plan for the cultivation of vacant lot tracts and other parcels of idle land in Philadelphia, London and other large cities.

Mr. Fels was 60 years old when death closed his career. He was little known outside of his own country until he espoused the single-tax cause about ten years ago.

He was born in Halifax, Va., December 16, 1854, the son of Lazarus Fels. He was educated in private schools in Yanceyville, N. C., and Richmond, Va., leaving school when he was .. years old.

Soon after leaving school he obtained a position as a traveling salesman for a soap firm in Baltimore. In 1870 he joined his father in the soap manufacturing business at Baltimore and later established a branch in England. When Lazarus Fels died, the business was carried on by his two sons, Joseph and Samuel S. Fels, in Philadelphia.

Conducting a model factory and later inaugurated a profit-sharing plan with their employes the Fels brothers prospered with their soap business and amassed millions.

Mr. Fels espoused the cause of Henry George in 1905, and since that time had devoted most of his time to forwarding the single-tax movement, leaving the management of the soap business to his brother.

Mr. Fels spent most of his time in England, where he had a beautiful home in Kent. He was largely occupied in studying facts and statistics which he thought would help the campaign against the land privileges.

Though Mr. Fels was most free in the contribution of his fortune for the benefit of the single-tax cause, he objected to being termed a philanthropist. In fact, he seldom, if ever gave to charity, and frequently asserted that "charities were agents of pauperization."

Some Fels Maxims

Following are some of Joseph Fels' aphorisms which made a striking impression on all classes, the world over:

"One of the hardest things is to convince the man with a full stomach that there is somebody hungry.

"I do not believe in anything being taxed that is made by human hands.

"I should like to wipe out that part of capital which is not produced by labor.

"I do not believe people are lazy by nature; they are lazy by reason of being forced to be lazy.

"There is no such thing as monopoly of labor; there is monopoly of land.

"I sometimes think that we Americans are the most easily tricked and fooled people on earth.

"If we had an educational fund of $1,000,000 a year we'd upset the world in twenty years, as to economic conditions. I will be one of twelve to supply the funds.

"We cannot get rich under present conditions without robbing somebody. I have done it, and am still doing it but I propose to spend the damnable money to wipe out the system by which I made it.

"The gentleman who holds a deed to vacant land does not want to dig or build; he wants to use a carving knife on some other man.

"If there was a 2 1-2 per cent tax on land values, I believe that within five years four jobs would be running after three men, instead of four men running after three jobs."

Would Not Give to Charity.

Mr. Fels' conviction that charities furnish only a temporary relief and add to the toll of pauperization was expressed in a reply to a letter to the single-taxer from a sanitorium for consumptives asking for a contribution. The reply is in part as follows:

"Mr. Fels contributes no money to charity. He knows that neither your charity nor any other can do more than temporarily relieve a few individual cases of distress. He knows that what the poor need most is not alms, but a change in social conditions which will make alms giving unnecessary. It is to help in bringing about such a change that he is giving whatever he can spare to the abrogation of monopoly and special privilege.

"In the case of your own special charity, you are trying to keep up an institution for the care of indigent diseased people. You certainly must know that the conditions under which the poor live and work inevitably breed both consumption and poverty.

"You must know that a social system which so restricts opportunities for employment that thousands gladly accept a chance to work amidst the most unhealthy surroundings, under the most harmful conditions, inevitably produces consumptives by the thousands.

"You must know that a system which places a premium on the withholding of valuable land from use must bring about the overcrowding of millions into disease-breeding tenements.

"You know this, and yet imagine that, when you announce your readiness to care for 50 victims of this outrageous system, your duty is done.

"It does not seem to occur to you that the cause of this evil should be removed, so that the further wholesale production of consumptives may be stopped and existing consumptives and their near relatives enabled to become self-supporting, so as not to need the aid of an institution like yours."

Why He Supported Single-Tax Idea.

When asked several months ago what was the "underlying reason" of his support of the single-tax, Mr. Fels made a characteristic reply as follows:

"Beyond the fact that I believe this would be a reform which would settle most, if not the whole of the problems of poverty, I have another reason. When I turn my toes up to the daisies and go to enrich the flowers my money will be no help to me. I feel that I had better put it where it will do the most good now, while I have breath and a few brains left to apply it."

On another occasion, when asked if any of his experiments had proved the theory which he desired to have applied to the land question, Mr. Fels said:

"The most typical experiment is that of the agricultural village near Athome, Essex. Four years ago this was a large, abandoned farm, of nearly 700 acres. Today it supports a fairly satisfactory community of about 300 persons. The significant thing is, I paid $35 per acre for that land when I bought it, and my next door neighbors now decline to sell their land for 50 per cent more.

"The land has gone up in value, but who created the increase in vale. It was certainly not created by our next door neighbors, and certainly not by me, for I do not live down there. It has been created by the people who settled there. My point is these land values belong to the people who have created them."

Senator Overman has issued a statement in which he declares most emphatically that Representative Robert N. Page had never in any way whatsoever opposed the appointment of W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, as district attorney. The junior Senator says that Page is one of the most influential men in Congress, that he has the utmost confidence in the ability and judgment of the Seventh district Congressman and that, in his opinion, no man in Congress stands higher with the leaders than does Mr. Page. Page is supporting him for re-election.

Shall the Sheriff of the County continue to be a tax collector? I am unequivocally in favor of divorcing tax collecting from the Sheriff's office, to leave him free to attend to the duties for which he was primarily intended. FRANK HERBST.

GLORIOUS HAIR

Always Attracts—Use Parisian Sage—Thin or Faded Hair Becomes Abundant and Radiant With Life.

Girls and women of all ages want to be charming, beautiful and attractive—it's their birthright—but unsightly, thin and characterless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face.

If your hair is not attractive, is falling out, streaky, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns, don't delay—use Parisian Sage. Apply with a sponge or cloth, taking a small strand of hair at a time. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. Parisian Sage removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of dirt, dust and excessive oil. It will cool and invigorate the scalp and make the hair doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage is a scientifically made preparation that gives the hair just what is needed to make it soft, fluffy, thick, and gloriously radiant. It is delicately perfumed—not sticky or greasy. Sold in fifty cent bottles only at all drug and toilet counters. Look for the trade mark—"The Girl with the Auburn Hair." Accept no substitute.

Delighted users pronounce Parisian Sage the best hair tonic. Get a bottle from Robert R. Bellamy today—he will return the money if you are not satisfied.

RUARK FOR SENATOR.

Editor Star: I read letter in your issue of 5th instant signed by Mr. L. B. Sasser. He advocates the absolute disregard of an admitted agreement The past few days furnishes through the action of President Wilson as to Panama Canal tolls an example which Mr. Sasser and those who think as he does would do well to emulate.

Although I have been for twelve years a resident of New Hanover, I was born and lived many years in Brunswick. I have known Joseph W. Ruark from his infancy. His father has been my intimate life-long friend. Mr. Sasser evidently knows nothing of the man, and yet, is willing to refer to him as "inexperienced." As a matter of fact, Mr. Sasser is entirely wrong in his estimate of Mr. Ruark.

Under careful training Mr. Ruark reached the age when he should choose his life work and he became a lawyer. He practiced successfully his profession for about four years at Sanford, N. C., during which time the Democrats of that prosperous community practically unanimously elected him as mayor. Preferring to live his life in his native section, he is now a successful and respected lawyer in Brunswick.

He is competent and trust worthy, will stand by any obligation he assumes, and the voters of New Hanover need not fear to have him represent them in the State Senate. I commend him to the voters to New Hanover.

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Cure

How many hospital patients, suffering the frightful itch, the raw scorching pain of skin disease, have been soothed to sleep by a soothing fluid washed in by the nurse's hands?

That fluid is the famous D. D. D. prescription for eczema.

THE SUPERVISING NURSE of one of our prominent Catholic institutions (name of nurse and institute on application), writes regarding a patient. "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression,"

How many eczema sufferers are paying their doctors for regular treatment and are being treated with this same soothing, healing fluid?

DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes "D. D. D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Soft and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D. D. D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle. Follow these directions—and see!

And it certainly takes away the itch at once—the moment the liquid is applied. The skin is soothed—calmed—so thoroughly refreshed—delightfully cooled.

All druggists of standing have the famous specific as well as the efficient D. D. D. Skin Soap.

But we are so confident of the merits of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

An Extension Telephone— The Essence of Convenience

"How did I answer so quickly?

"Why, we've just had an Extension telephone installed. I can send or answer calls from either floor now and there's no more tramping up or down to answer. It's splendid. Why don't you have one, too?

"Cost? why that's almost no account. It's only a few cents a day and you can't compare the comfort and convenience to THAT.

"Call the Bell Contract Dept. to order it—that's what I did."
